WARREN COUNTY

Dr. Ross E. Bryan, chairman, speaking for the Citizens' Committee for Rice and Marshall yesterday answered the recent letter by incumbent Republican county commissioner Blain M. Mead to the voters. The committee has labeled the letter a piece of misinformation and a smoke screen to cover the real issues of the campaign.

THE NATION

The Senate Finance Committee unexpectedly approved a $6.1 billion increase in Social Security taxes to finance liberalized benefits and combat inflation. The action, described as tentative, went far beyond a preliminary step taken by the committee earlier in stiffening tax provisions of the House-approved Social Security bill.

Senate and House conferees reached formal agreement on a foreign aid authorization of $2.67 billion in the fiscal year that ends next June 30. The compromise figure was more than $780 million less than that proposed by President Johnson. Behind the agreement lay hard-fought conferences over the last seven weeks in which the most controversial issue was the Senate's insistence that U.S. arms sales on easy credit terms to underdeveloped countries be ended on Dec. 31.

President Johnson threatened to veto any protectionist trade quota bill that Congress approves. In what was described as a clear effort to counter a sudden surge of protectionist sentiment in Congress, the President told 1,000 delegates to a consumer association: "These bills must not become law and they're not going to become law as long as I am President."

THE WORLD

Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg threw open the door to participation by the Communist National Liberation Front of South Vietnam in a Vietnam peace conference. The chief United States representative at the United Nations, in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, thereby signalled by an apparent relaxation in administration terms for a Vietnam conference. His testimony was the most explicit statement yet to be made by the administration on the willingness of the U.S. to accept representation of the political organization of the Communist Viet Cong forces in working out a peace settlement.

Fresh American troops from the 25th Infantry Division arrived at the embattled town of Loc Ninh as reinforcements following early morning fighting in which an estimated 400 Viet Cong were killed. During the fighting the Viet Cong charged out of the darkness against the position of a U.S. First Infantry Division battalion west of the town and against the district headquarters inside the town. Loc Ninh is 72 miles north of Saigon.

President Johnson's unofficial envoy was reported to have sounded out President Nasser for 90 minutes of possible openings for a political settlement in the Middle East. Robert B. Anderson, who was Secretary of the Treasury under President Eisenhower, met with Nasser in Cairo Wednesday night. He left Egypt for Europe and is expected to report personally to President Johnson on his findings.

The British Government announced that it would withdraw entirely from Aden and South Arabia during the second half of November. The announcement, in the words of Foreign Secretary George Brown to the House of Commons, mark "the ending of the imperial era."

SPORTS

Sports Editor Larry Steele comments on Warren Area High School's controversial Section II football schedule and a "dream" rematch with Franklin in his column today. His final predictions for the 1967 grid season also appears on Page 6.

Few pro football teams make it through the season without injuries to key players. Quarterback Frank Ryan is still a question mark for the Browns' game with the Steelers Sunday and an injury gives linebacker Marty Schottenheimer his opportunity to break into the Buffalo Bills' lineup. A full report on injuries in both the NFL and AFL on Page 6.

Sal Maglie, fired as Boston's pitching coach last month, was quoted in a Boston newspaper as saying "I got a lousy deal from Dick Williams," manager of the Red Sox. The ex-Giant ace indicated he may be through with baseball. Page 7.

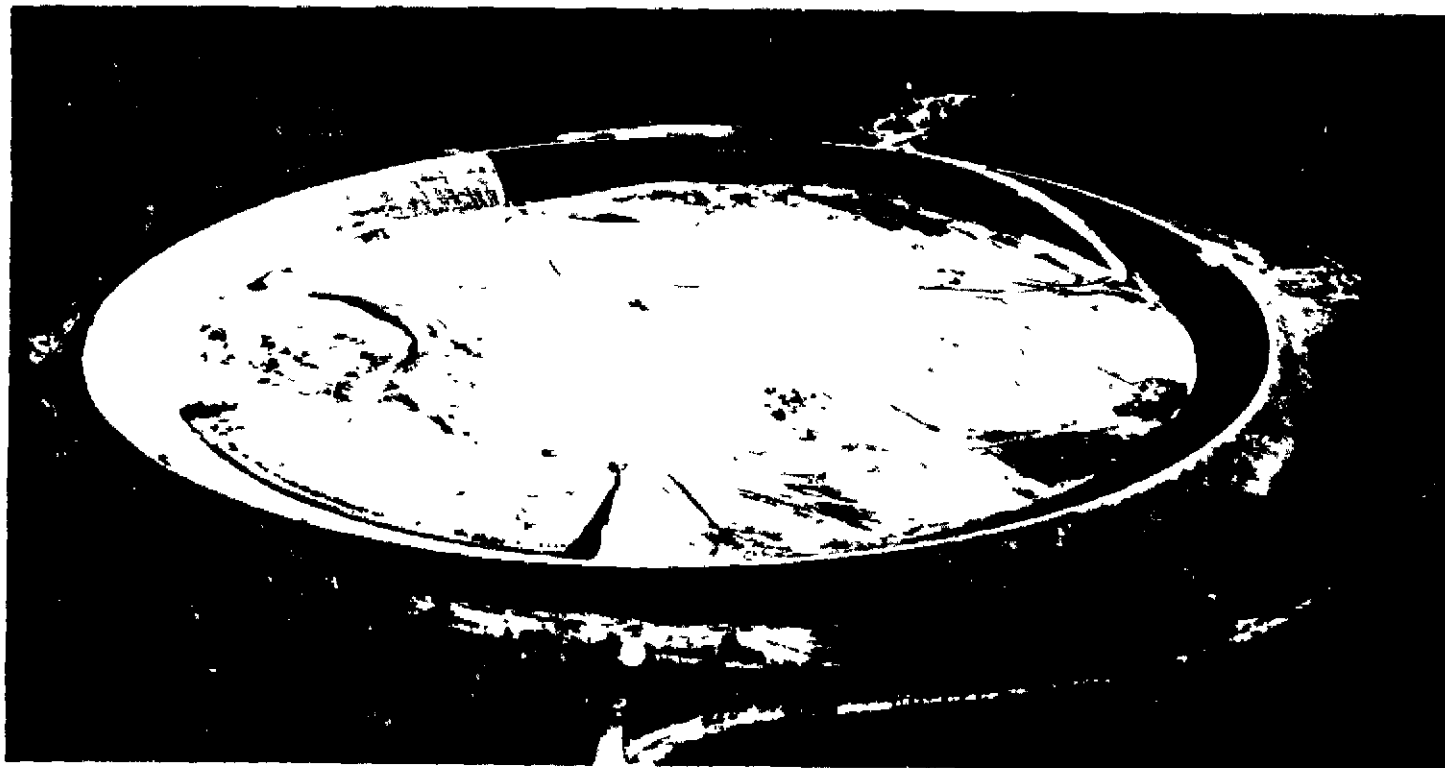

Tomorrow's Dartmouth-Yale contest is being billed as the Ivy League title game. Both teams are 3-0 in conference play. Page 6.

Vicente Saldivar, who retired recently as World Featherweight champion, was named Fighter of the Month by Ring Magazine yesterday. Ring also announced its ratings in each division. Page 7.

COLOSSEUM-LIKE RESERVOIR

What at first glance appears to be a woodland sports colosseum—which would hold over 100,000 spectators—is actually the upper reservoir of the Kinzua Dam, someday to hold 100 acres and a depth of 64 feet of water for storage. Construction is progressing on the reservoir, located 800 feet above and a half-mile from the site of the Seneca Power Plant it will serve. The $40 million pumped-storage hydro-electric plant has been scheduled to be completed and in initial operation in the spring of 1969. The upper hold will be filled during periods of low power demand and the water released during high demands to produce electric power. (Photo by Mahan; Pilot, Beach)

Poison Death Of 7 Children Ruled Murder

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP)—A coroner's jury last night ruled that James Richardson and "other persons unknown" should be held for first degree murder in the parathion poisoning deaths of his seven children.

The jury returned a report saying it had found that the deaths of the Richardson children occurred "by premeditated design" and were caused "by parathion put in their food."

The jury began its deliberation shortly after Sheriff Frank Cline testified that authorities have linked the deaths of three other children in the Richardson family to poisoning.

Cline, testifying just before the six-member jury retired to begin its deliberation, said detectives in Duval County Jacksonville had reported the new poisoning deaths to him by telephone.

Penn-Sheraton's Death Predicted

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Penn-Sheraton Hotel, hit by a 33-day strike, said yesterday it may go out of business unless the employees' union relents on its demands.

Negotiations to end the walk-out at the city's largest hotel broke off after the union said it had been given an ultimatum from management.

John J. Kenny, president of Local 227, Hotel & Restaurant Workers Alliance, said if the union conceded to the hotel's proposals it would mean giving up benefits won in the last 30 years.

Social Security Hike is Approved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Finance Committee voted Thursday to increase Social Security payroll deductions from 4.4 to 5 per cent next year and to raise the maximum base from $6,600 to $8,800 to pay for higher old-age benefits.

The increases are higher than the 4.6 per cent and $7,800 figures which Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., said Wednesday the committee had arrived at. But, in informally revealing the new figures, he said they still are not final. The committee plans to look at them again today and Long said he expects it to finish work on the legislation then.

The House voted to leave at 4.4 per cent the rate for both payroll deductions and the employer's matching payments to the Social Security fund, but voted to raise to $7,600 the annual income point at which the tax cuts off.

The administration had recommended that the rate be left at 4.4 per cent but the base raised to $7,800 next year.

If the Senate Committee figures become law, this means an individual earning $8,800 or more would pay $440 in Social Security taxes during 1968 instead of the maximum of $290.40 anyone pays this year. Long said the $6.1 billion extra the increases would bring in is needed to pay for the bigger benefits voted by his committee.

These remained as Long announced Wednesday, a 15 per cent across-the-board boost with a $70 monthly minimum benefit.

Long declined to make public officially some of the other increased benefits, but they are known to: —Permit both men and women to draw Social Security retirement payments at age 60 on a reduced scale. Only widows have this privilege now. Men and women workers now can retire at age 62 with lowered payments and can draw full benefits if they retire at 65 or later.

—Increase to $2,000 the amount a person eligible for retirement can earn and still not lose any Social Security benefits. Now the limit is $1,500. The House voted to raise that to $1,680.

Long conceded that the bill as it finally emerges from Congress probably will not include all the benefits voted by his committee.

Orders Troops Into Gary For Election

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)—Gov. Roger D. Branigin announced yesterday he has ordered state police and National Guard troops into Gary to prevent disorder during the city election Tuesday.

Branigin acted after conferees with top state police and National Guard officials on the possibility of violence in the contest between Negro Democrat Richard G. Hatcher and Republican Joseph B. Radigan.

"Information which I believe reliable indicates imminent danger to the peace of the Gary community," Branigin said in a statement. Reports have circulated for weeks that rioting might occur as the vote is counted in the racially-flavored contest between Hatcher and Radigan.

Guardsmen Mobilized in Winston-Salem Violence

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Violence broke out in downtown Winston-Salem last night in the wake of funeral services for a Negro who died after being struck by a policeman. Groups of Negroes roamed the streets on foot and in cars. They set small fires, tossed rocks and bottles, broke store windows, overturned autos and set them afire and scuffled with police.

Police Chief Justus Tucker said every available policeman had been called to duty. He said the situation was serious.

At Raleigh, Gov. Dan Moore ordered mobilization of a company of National Guardsmen.

Cambodia Gives Mrs. Kennedy Warm Welcome

(c) N.Y. Times News Service PHNOMPENH, Cambodia — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy was given a colorful welcome here yesterday of the kind Cambodia usually provides official visitors of the highest rank.

She was greeted at Phnompenh airport by Chief of State Norodom Sihanouk and rode with the Prince into the Cambodian capital at the head of a procession of official cars to be a guest at the Royal Palace, one of the Khmer Cambodian residences.

Mrs. Kennedy was accompanied by Lord Harlech, a former British ambassador to the U.S., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bartlett and Michael Forrestal—all longtime friends—and her usual escort of Secret Service men.

The widow of the late President Kennedy has come to Cambodia at the invitation of Prince Sihanouk to be present at the unveiling of a plaque and the naming of an avenue in the Cambodian port city of Sihanoukville for President Kennedy.

She will also spend three days sightseeing among the ruins of palaces and temples in and around Angkor, center of the great Khmer empire that flourished from the 9th to the 13th century.

Mrs. Kennedy is the first American to be received with state honors since Cambodia broke off relations with the United States in 1965 over Prince Sihanouk's claims of hostile U.S. moves linked with Washington's backing of Thailand and South Vietnam.

Maj. Gen. Claude Bowers, the state's adjutant general, was ordered to take charge of the guardsmen, many of whom recently received special riot training.

Police cordoned off an eight-block area near the center of the city and which borders on a substantially Negro section.

A police source said groups of Negroes scattered over the downtown area setting trash fires in boxes in front of stores. Some scuffled with police and passersby.

Dick Creed, city editor of the Winston-Salem Journal, was struck in the face by a Negro he was seeking to question on the street.

Creed was not seriously hurt and continued on the job.

The roving bands turned trucks and cars over, and blocked a freight train moving through the downtown area.

Police, armed with billy clubs, formed a cordon and herded a group of about 30 Negroes to the police station.

Reds' Mortars Hit Loc Ninh Reinforcements

SAIGON (AP)—Communist mortar shells hit a freshly arrived U.S. reinforcement around Loc Ninh today, carrying the now-epic battle near the Cambodian frontier into its sixth day.

The mortar shelling and small arms fire hit a 25th Infantry Division even as the toll of Communist dead since Sunday in the fighting 72 miles north of Saigon reached a staggering 832, by American count.

Initial reports from the field said the U.S. infantrymen suffered six dead and 55 wounded. With the arrival at the inflamed sector of one reinforcing battalion of the 25th Division, the allied force defending Loc Ninh totalled about 5,000 men. These included four battalions of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division, the 25th Division battalion, a battalion of South Vietnamese regulars and two companies of Vietnamese civilian irregulars with their Green Beret U.S. Special Forces advisers.

Many of the Communists were killed by thunderous Allied artillery barrages and repeated air strikes. Against the staggering enemy losses, U.S. and South Vietnamese officers reported their own casualties as relatively light. The announced toll since Sunday was eight U.S. soldiers killed and 32 wounded, and 32 South Vietnamese killed and 74 wounded.

In yesterday's fighting, the Vietnamese and 1st Division positions came under ground attacks in the six hours before dawn. The U.S. Command said the enemy failed to penetrate perimeter defenses of either force and broke contact at daybreak, dragging off their dead and leaving blood trails.

The Communists took the initiative in two other actions: —Viet Cong raiders killed seven civilians, wounded 10 and burned more than 300 homes at Dai Loc, a district hamlet midway between American coastal bases at Da Nang and Chu Lai. They planned down South Vietnamese troops at a nearby compound and shelled positions at two U.S. Marine positions six miles southwest of Dai Loc. Unofficial reports said nine Marines were killed and 14 wounded.

—Communist troops attacked units of the 3rd Marine regiment about two miles south of the Leatherneck post at Con Thien, just below the demilitarized zone. Pounded heavily by U.S. artillery, they finally pulled back after a four-hour fight. American spokesmen said five Marines and 11 of the enemy were killed.

U.S. Position on Viet Talks Alters

BY JOHN W. FINNEY (c) N.Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON — Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg outlined yesterday two ways in which the Johnson administration is prepared to agree to the participation of the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam in peace talks.

Apparently softening the administration's position, the chief U.S. representative at the UN said in testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee:

—That the U.S. would vote for participation by the NLF in any UN Security Council discussion of Vietnam.

—That the U.S. was willing to accept participation of the NLF in an enlarged Geneva conference. The second point came out in response to a question by Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., as to whether the U.S. would accept Viet Cong representation at such a reconvened conference. "We would recognize the competence of the conference to decide the invitees and the scope," of the conference, Goldberg replied.

With his testimony, Goldberg tended to remove some of the administration's ambiguity on the question of Viet Cong participation in any peace negotiations. Partly because of the sensitivities of the Saigon government, the administration has maintained an ambiguous position on how far it was prepared to go in permitting representation of the Viet Cong as a separate political entity. The administration has always left unclear whether it contemplated that the front would be represented as a separate entity or as part of the delegation of North Vietnam. Privately, administration officials have left the impression that they envisioned the NLF presenting its views through the North Vietnamese delegation.

Goldberg said the U.S. would "not stand in the way" of the NLF being invited to participate in Security Council discussions of the Vietnam issue. The U.S., he said, would not initiate such an invitation, but, he continued, "our vote would be available if necessary" to approve such an invitation.

Neither the NLF nor North Vietnam is represented in the United Nations, but Goldberg pointed out that rule 39 of the council's regulations makes provision for inviting nonmembers to participate in council discussions. Such an invitation requires the vote of at least nine of the council's 15 members, and as Goldberg made clear, the affirmative vote of the U.S. would be available.

Killed in Action

Marine Lance Cpl. Larry R. Havers, husband of Mrs. Larry R. Havers of Bradford, was among three Pennsylvanians listed last night as killed in action in Vietnam, according to a report by the Defense Department.

Report on Boro Mishaps

Warren borough police during the month of October recorded 42 traffic accidents resulting in property damage totaling $46,945.

There were no fatalities last month but 18 persons suffered injuries including 13 operators, two passengers and three others.

Hit and run incidents totaled nine.

There were 30 local operators involved, 49 from out-of-town, 59 males and 20 females.

During the same period last year there were 30 accidents and 14 injured. Property damage in 1966 was listed at $14,683.

Hail 'Victory' For Mao in Inner Mongolia

(c) N. Y. Times News Service HONG KONG—China yesterday announced the formation in Inner Mongolia of a new revolutionary committee headed by a senior military figure from Peking and hailed it as victory for supporters of Chinese Communist leader Mao Tse-Tung.

But papers in Peking also warned that "enemies at home and abroad" would not be reconciled to their reverses.

An editorial carried in both Jenmin Jih Pao, official Communist party paper, and Chieh Fang Chun Pao, armed forces publication, and broadcast by Peking radio, said that every effort must be made to "consolidate the national frontiers."

Peking radio also broadcast statement that "Soviet revisionists and Mongolian revisionists" had always made trouble in Inner Mongolia and "tried to stage subversive activities there."

The head of the new committee is Teng Hai-Ching, former deputy commander of Peking military garrison, who was sent to Inner Mongolia last May to deal with internal enemies and is now presumably expected to make it secure from external "revisionist" enemies.

Damage Minor In Boro Mishap

A parking accident caused minor damage to two cars shortly after 12:30 p.m. yesterday afternoon.

Attempting to back into a meter space, Harold Mealy, Box 704, Warren, police said, drove back too far and hit the front of a car that had been driven by Junior Allen Raleigh, 16 Orchard st. The Raleigh vehicle, which suffered $25 in damage, was legally parked behind the space which Mealy attempted to occupy, according to borough police.

Slight damage of $10 was set for the Mealy auto.

Reply to Mead's Letter to Voters

The Citizens Committee for Rice and Marshall answered incumbent Republican commissioner Blain M. Mead's letter to the voters of Warren County, yesterday, labeling it a piece of deliberate misinformation and a smoke screen to cover the real issues in the campaign.

"Our invitation to Mr. Mead to discuss the issues in Warren County with commissioner candidates Dr. David K. Rice and James G. Marshall is a matter of public record," Dr. Ross E. Bryan, chairman of the citizens committee, said.

"We demanded neither a moderator of our choosing nor a time and place to our liking," Bryan said.

"In fact, we said the moderator should be a neutral party suitable to both sides. We asked Mr. Mead to name a time and place to his liking and left the choice of moderator to further contacts with him," he said.

"Mr. Mead lacked even the courtesy to reply to our letter either a positive or negative fashion."

"And if Mr. Mead did not wish to accept our invitation," Bryan said, "why is it that he agreed to attend a meeting of the Warren County Young Republicans and then failed to appear?"

"Is Mr. Mead accusing the Young Republicans of stacking the deck, as he calls it?" Bryan asked.

"The Young Republicans meeting was not set up as a debate between the candidates, as reported in yesterday's paper. It was conceived wholly by the group to give the voters a chance to see where the candidates stood on the issues."

Bryan added that Mead has also refused to meet with individual citizens who have sought to determine his views

House Passes Broad Bill On Clean Air

(c) N. Y. Times News Service WASHINGTON—The House passed last night a broad clean air bill after California won a signal victory over the automobile industry in a fight over control of exhaust pollution. The vote was 362 to 0.

The bill, one of the major pieces of legislation President Johnson wants, would authorize a three-year program to combat air pollution by all sources. It would empower the federal government to step in with cleanup programs if the states failed to act.

An almost identical bill was passed July 18 by the Senate. The Senate bill, however, would authorize a $700 million program against the House bill of $428 million. But a compromise on the figures is expected in a Senate-House conference to assure final enactment and the President's signature.

The bill would require on the issues. "It has come to our attention," Bryan said, "that individuals have made appointments with Mr. Mead to help them make up their minds on who they intend to vote for. We know for a fact that Mr. Mead made appointments to see these people and then failed to show up at the designated time."

"Mr. Mead says he does not hesitate to discuss the issues," Bryan said, "but we want to know with whom?"

"He has already refused to discuss them with his opposition, at a formal meeting of the younger members of his own party and individual citizens. Who is there left?"

In the matter of campaign funds, Bryan said Mead is erroneous in his estimate of campaign costs and that neither candidate has made or intends to make any concessions to contributions to the campaign.

"Hundreds of people have contributed time and money to this campaign," he said. "The only thing they want to get out of it is decent county government."

Bomb Threat at Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —Willard Hall, a classroom and administration building at Pennsylvania State University, was closed down for about one hour yesterday after a telephoned bomb threat.

Radio station WMAJ in State College said it received a call about 5:24 p.m. from a male who said a bomb was to be detonated in the building at 6:30 p.m. Shortly afterward, the station said, a similar call was made

Romney Cancels TV Appearance

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. George Romney, a presidential aspirant, said yesterday he has canceled a half hour's national television time on the Columbia Broadcasting System because of restrictions imposed by the network.

"These restrictions would have, in effect, made it mandatory that I announce to a single network two weeks in advance that I have reached an affirmative decision concerning seeking the nomination," of the Republican party for president, Romney said.

Romney added that he would say "in the near future" whether he will seek the nomination but he did not say when or how he would make his decision known.

Invade Katanga Using Stolen Train

KINSHASA, Congo (AP)—A mysterious force of white and African soldiers raced into Katanga province Thursday in a stolen train while rebel mercenaries at Bukavu, 1,000 miles away, suffered losses, government sources said.

The invaders crossed into the Congo Wednesday evening from neighboring Portuguese Angola, the sources said. Unconfirmed reports said they had taken Jadotville, a fortified mining town only about 100 miles from Lubumbashi, formerly Elizabethville, capital of copper-rich Katanga.

The strength of the invading force was not known. It was not established whether the force was bound for Lubumbashi or Kamina air base to the north. Another unconfirmed report told of a second column that had taken the Congolese border town of Dilolo.

Some observers believed the invasion was intended to relieve pressure on the 1,100 mercenaries surrounded by government units at Bukavu.

Foreign Minister Justin Bombo said he would appeal to the United Nations Security Council, charging Portugal with aiding mercenaries in Angola.

In New York, United Nations sources said the Security Council probably would meet Friday at the Congo's request. An American U.N. spokesman said the United States had received information that apparently confirmed reports of the invasion.

In Kinshasa, the Congolese capital, radios blared martial music and called the invaders "bloodthirsty hordes . . . killing and looting," but the mood remained calm and no security measures were announced immediately.

About 22,400 of the Congo's 30,000-man army have been reported centered around Bukavu, a provincial capital near the eastern border. Government sources said all troops in the area of Lubumbashi, have been ordered to cut off the new mercenary column.

The sources said the invaders crossed the border Wednesday, stole a number of trucks, drove 60 miles east and captured a train. The report indicated that the mercenaries, moving along a 400-mile rail line from the border to Lubumbashi, had already passed Kolwezi, a copper-mine center and capital of Lubumbashi Province.

AID FOR PARENTS

Ushers are hardly a common sight at Beaty Junior High School, except when the parents of the students attend classes during the annual open house. Peggy Haight (foreground) was one of many girls who served as ushers last night to guide the visitors to the various classrooms on the schedule maintained by their children. Parents who once attended Beaty themselves can probably remember times during their teens when they could have used the help of ushers to clear the way while they rushed to beat the tardy bell. (Photo by Mahan)

Yale's Grading Changed

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The faculty of Yale College voted yesterday to abolish its numerical grading system.

Under the new plan, a five-year experiment to begin next January, teachers will choose among four designations for their students; fail, pass, high pass and honors.

The vote, which followed months of study and debate here, gives Yale one of the least restrictive grading systems in American higher education.

It reflects a growing feeling among educators here and elsewhere that a student's work cannot be measured with numerical precision.

Yale now grades on a scale of 40 to 100, with 60 the passing grade. Most other American colleges give students, A, B, C, D or F, often with pluses and minuses to indicate shades of difference.

Water Discharge From Dam

The widespread interest being shown in the meeting to be held Saturday at Tionesta between the Corps of Engineers and interested parties to discuss flowage in the Allegheny River below the Kinzua Dam is commendable. Widespread interest in such discussions should be far more general than usually is the case.

There are some indications, however, that some who have stated an intention to attend this meeting will be there to promote selfish interests rather than discuss intelligently the major problem created by the discharged waters. This is the problem of what can be done to prevent sudden fluctuations in the river level that have recently endangered lives and caused property loss to those residing on the river's banks.

No consideration can be given to the fisherman who wants a specific river level maintained because it improves his chances of making a catch, or the property owner who wants assurance that boats and other floatable objects can be left indiscriminately scattered along the shore.

When periods of excess rainfall are experienced upstream from the dam the waters will be impounded. And as Jim Baker, a Corps official says, "We can't drink all of that water." It must be released downstream at sometime or another.

These releases will usually be at some time after the tributaries below the dam have delivered their peak flow and are returning to normal. And when the impounded waters in the dam reach a sizeable volume it can be expected that the discharge rate will keep the river downstream at a considerable height for an extended period of time.

This is the accepted programming of flood control dams throughout the nation, so any deviation from this pattern is simply out of the question.

What those attending the meeting can expect, though, is a more reasonable approach to how the impounded water will be discharged. There seems to be little reason that when the time comes for a release it has to be so immediate and sudden that fair warning can't be given through the news media.

This is the problem, and the only problem, that should be discussed at Saturday's meeting. That is, unless the fishermen do wish to suggest that the discharge rate could be cut to some extent on weekends and holidays when most rodbenders are on the stream, with higher discharges scheduled throughout the week.

This would be a worthwhile concession on the part of the Corps, which has demonstrated a desire to cooperate in the past, and should be enough to make the fisherman happy.

SYLVIA PORTER Save On Taxes Now --- V

(In collaboration with the Research Institute of America)

If you are typical of America's divorced or separated parents, you have in the past had unpleasant arguments and even tax litigation over which one of you can take the $600 dependency deduction for your children. Now, as a result of a 1967 tax law change which has received virtually no national publicity, you will with proper year-end tax strategy, be able to avoid this.

Porter

The problem up to now has been the requirement that the husband or wife must have contributed more than half of the child's total support for the year to be eligible for the dependency deduction. The husband knows how much he contributes for a child's support but he doesn't know how much more his divorced or separated wife adds to the child's total support for the year unless she tells him. If she refuses to tell him, then he has no way of proving to an Internal Revenue agent that he contributed more than half of the child's total support for the year and that he is thus entitled to the dependency deduction.

The new law largely eliminates this problem and goes beyond it. It allows you, the parents, to agree between you who should get the deduction for each of your children, and the Treasury will honor your agreement. Specifically:

The parent who has custody of the child for the greater part of the year (usually the mother) will generally get the $600 dependency deduction, except that the other parent (usually the father) can have the deduction if either (1) he contributed at least $600 to the child's support during the year, and the divorce or separation decree or written agreement provides that he gets the deduction, or (2) he contributed $1,200 or more for child support during the year (regardless of how many children) and the parent having custody (wife) doesn't prove that she contributed more. If she claims she contributed more than he, each parent is entitled to the other's itemized statement of expenses.

These new rules apply only where the parents together furnish more than half of a child's total support for the year (thus it wouldn't apply if grandparents contributed 75 per cent of the total) and the child is in the custody of one or both parents for more than half the year (thus it wouldn't apply if the child was in the custody of grandparents for seven months).

The change in the law takes effect in 1967 and opens the way to important year-end tax strategy steps.

If you, the divorced or separated parent, can work out the dependency deductions sensibly between you, then you can agree in writing which child or children the father can take. If you, the father, contribute at least $600 for each of the children during the year, you can take the dependency deductions without any trouble from the Treasury.

This written agreement can be a separate new document and need not be incorporated in the decree or previous agreement.

While the Treasury hasn't yet issued its official regulations on such details as whether an agreement made now will apply to all of '67, the likelihood is the law will be liberally interpreted so that you'll be under the new rules even though you don't make your written agreement until after you have read this column.

If you, a divorced or separated husband, can't agree with your wife on who should get the dependency deductions for your children, you'll no longer be up against the problem of being unable to prove you contributed more than half the support. By contributing a total of $1,200 or more before Dec. 31 for all the children, you will become entitled to get your wife's statement of her expenses.

Before making any agreement about dependency deductions, you should be thoroughly aware that any medical expense deductions and child care deductions depend on who gets the dependency deduction.

Elections to Involve Showdown

WASHINGTON—Next week's elections will see an important showdown inside the Catholic Church over Pope John's liberalism vs. Cardinal Spellman's conservatism. Behind the showdown is a drive to break the constitutional separation of church and state.

In New York, the Citizens for Educational Freedom, predominantly Catholic, has set a budget of $900,000 to finance a drive to ratify the new New York Constitution. The real motive? To remove the Blaine Amendment which now bars state aid to parochial schools.

The $900,000 to pay for full page ads and radio plugs is being raised by such measures as putting the touch on every priest in the Diocese for $25 each, and in Brooklyn by requiring every pupil in a parochial school to pay $1.

Philadelphia Mayor James Tate, a colorless but able Catholic democrat, is campaigning partly for approval of the Mullins Bill, which would give $26 million of state aid to parochial schools the first year. Thereafter the bill would delegate money to a state organization, similar to a transit authority, which would parcel out educational contracts to church schools under the illusion that this indirect expenditure would not be state aid.

Meanwhile there is a growing restlessness inside the Church against the restricted methods of teaching in parochial schools and a rebellion against the Spellman policy of separating Catholic education and Catholic life from the outside world.

Real ecumenicalism as initiated by Pope John has been the target of this revolt—a revolt which has found priests rebelling against the hierarchy at Catholic University in Washington, Father William Dubay calling Cardinal McIntyre of Los Angeles a bigot; and Father James Groppi of Milwaukee leading one of the most fantastic drives against the white established order in the history of American Catholicism.

Father Dubay, now suspended by Cardinal McIntyre, urged that the church give up its tax-exempt status. If the Church's $44 billion of tax-free property were taxed at normal rates, the priest pleaded, enormous federal benefits could go to the poor.

Father Dubay has also organized the American Federation of Priests and applied for affiliation with the AFL-CIO, a move which has brought a blank stare from AFL-CIO President George Meany, a conventional Catholic. But it has aroused the interest of many of the 60,000 Catholic priests, restless and overworked because of a manpower shortage.

Of the 180,000 nuns in the United States, the Ladies Home Journal estimates that last year 3,600 cast off their robes in revolt against Church conservatism, while others started liberal campaigns in the slums, in Appalachia and among Negroes. They crusaded for women's rights, integration and cooperation among all religious faiths, not the isolation of the old-fashioned parochial schools.

The story of the Catholic revolt, ranging from underground lay masses held in the District of Columbia, Northern New Jersey and elsewhere to the criticism of Cardinal Spellman's blessing on the Vietnam war where his "Soldiers of Christ" are fighting, and the leaving conversion of one-time conservative Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen in Rochester, is told by Warren Hinkle, a prominent lay Catholic, in this month's Ramparts Magazine, founded by lay Catholics.

Hinkle tells of his own experience in parochial schools where "one gained the impression that reading the Bible might not be a good idea because it was filled with dangerous passages that only the Church could properly interpret for you. All I learned about Jews was that Christ had kicked them out of the temple for money-changing (nobody, nun or priest, made much about Christ being a Jew, too). Adjectives like 'perfidious' were applied to them in the prayers we had to memorize."

"A course in anti-communism was required," writes Hinkle of his Catholic college training. "And one of the textbooks was J. Edgar Hoover's 'Masters of Deceit.'"

"I found my experience to be typical of other disillusioned or disenfranchised Catholics who have gone through Catholic schools. It is therefore no wonder that there is a revolt going on in the Catholic Church in America."

This is the type of school which the Citizens for Educational Freedom want to get the taxpayers' money for in New York and Pennsylvania. The issue comes up next week in these two states, but the controversy is also strong in Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri and New Jersey, where the question of free transportation, free textbooks and free health services for parochial schools has been under debate.

The Republican party in New York, with the exception of Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, has come out strongly against the new Constitution. Mayor John Lindsay of New York City, Sen. Jacob Javits and Lt. Gov. Malcolm Wilson, all Republicans, have denounced the Constitution largely because it opens the state treasury to Catholic schools.

The Democratic party, on the other hand, is pushing strongly for the new Constitution. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, a Democrat and a Catholic, has not followed the lead of his late brother in opposing the use of the taxpayers' money for parochial schools.

The Liberal Party, which frequently lines up with the Democrats, has officially opposed the Constitution on the ground that the money to private and parochial schools would take money away from the public schools in the slum areas where it is most needed.

Is There Life on Earth?

WASHINGTON—There was great excitement on the planet of Venus this week. For the first time Venusian scientists managed to land a satellite on the planet Earth, and it has been sending back signals as well as photographs ever since.

The satellite was directed into an area known as Manhattan (named after the great Venusian astronomer Prof. Manhattan, who first discovered it with his telescope 200,000 light years ago).

Because of excellent weather conditions and extremely strong signals, Venusian scientists were able to get valuable information as to the feasibility of a manned flying saucer landing on Earth. A press conference was held at the Venus Institute of Technology.

"We have come to the conclusion, based on last week's satellite landing," Prof. Zog said, "that there is no life on Earth."

"How do you know this?" the science reporter of the Venus Evening Star asked.

"For one thing Earth's surface in the area of Manhattan is composed of solid concrete and nothing can grow there. For another, the atmosphere is filled with carbon monoxide and other deadly gases and nobody could possibly breathe this air and survive."

"What does this mean as far as our flying saucer program is concerned?"

"We shall have to take our own oxygen with us, which means a much heavier flying saucer than we originally planned."

"Are there any other hazards that you discovered in your studies?"

"Take a look at this photo. You see this dark black cloud hovering over the surface of Earth? We call this the Consolidated Edison Belt. We don't know what it is made of, but it could give us a lot of trouble and we shall have to make further tests before we send a Venus Being there."

"Over here you will notice what seems to be a river, but the satellite findings indicate it is polluted and the water is unfit to drink. This means we shall have to carry our own

MASON DENISON Off And Running

OFF AND RUNNING — With a pip-pip and a few words of encouragement from His Excellency, Governor Shafer's "Little Hoover Commission" — or more formally the "Governor's Commission for Modern State Government" — was off and running this week following its organizational meeting.

In a sense this newest creation of the executive branch is a series of paradoxes, unquestionably confounding to the layman, and perhaps to some members of the new GCMSC itself.

In the first place there is hardly a Governor worth his salt and skittles of more recent note who hasn't felt it incumbent upon him to gather together some such similar committee to "study" the ears off state government with the idea of recommending ways and means of streamlining the somewhat horrifying octopus, currently embracing more than 100,000 state payrollers costing more than a half-billion dollars a year. It seems to be regarded as a good first year venture for a chief executive — and that is just about where it has always ended.

Secondly, Mr. Shafer in his dictum to the brethren who agreed to serve on this GCMSC spelled out personally his goal thusly: "Help my administration economize, streamline and modernize so the people of Pennsylvania get every penny's worth out of every tax dollar that goes into making government work."

Nominally it would be assumed that this would involve, of necessity, recommendations for reorganization of government to achieve the "efficiency" of which Mr. Shafer spoke — but Budget Secretary Arthur F. Sampson asked the commission not to get involved in governmental reorganization, saying:

"The Governor is working on a massive government reorganization report and will make his recommendations to the Legislature next year."

Sighed one commission member attempting to comb his balding pate following the meeting: "Well, here we go again — one bureaucrat tells us one thing, another bureaucrat tells us another."

"NOW HEAR THIS" — The familiar Nary chant on board ship for sweepers to man their brooms, etc., may become commonplace for school troops riding school buses throughout the state.

Prior to the beginning of the school year State Police Trooper Leslie Davies, safety education officer of the Schuylkill Haven Sub-Station was chit-chatting with school bus drivers of the Pottsville Area School District on the subject of bus safety.

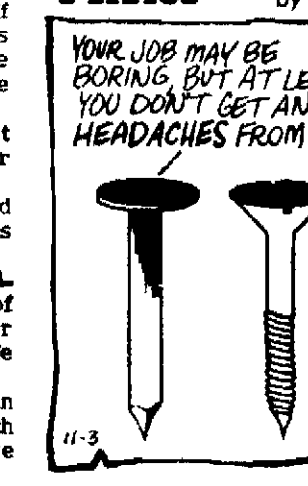

During the course of the confab a couple of drivers mentioned the problem of discipline on the buses, what with kids being kids and all that sort of thing, can be a problem for concentrating bus drivers.

Trooper Davies thought over the problem and came up with the idea of installing a public address system on the buses. The idea was tested and found to be so successful that it was adopted for all the orange chariots in the school district. All the bus driver needs to do now when the horseplay becomes too horsey is pick up the microphone, yell out a "Now Hear This" and tell the troops to settle down. No longer can the kids come up with: "Yes, but I didn't hear you!" (A bus driver's whistle probably will come next.)

METEORITES OVER PENN. SYLVANIA — If you are interested in celestial items, more particularly those that drop to earth such as meteorites, a new publication entitled "Meteorites Found in Pennsylvania" has been issued by the State Department of Internal Affairs.

The publication (it costs 40 cents) notes for example that eight meteorites have been discovered in Pennsylvania — the first in 1850 and the last in 1941. Illustrations of each of the meteorites, as well as accounts of their discoveries, will be found in the publication.

Deer and Mountain Lions

The last native mountain lion in Pennsylvania is said to have been killed in 1871. Now it has been reported that a mountain lion was shot and killed near the Erie County line just a few days ago. It was a female and only weighed 48 pounds. Full grown mountain lions usually weigh between 150 and 200 pounds. This 48-pounder must have been either a very young one or a terribly emaciated caricature of a mature one.

The report of the killing also indicated that a larger cat had been spotted, and forty hunters had combed the woods in pursuit of it.

I could never quite understand why the members of the genus Felis, or cat family, have been pursued so relentlessly by man. I suppose it is because man is reluctant to share the game with other more efficient predators.

And yet we are sadly in need of a few large predators, such as the mountain lion, to keep the deer population in balance with its food supply on overbrowsed ranges in Pennsylvania.

I have long felt that mountain lions brought in from the West might prove valuable additions to the fauna of the Allegheny National Forest, Michigan deer were once brought in to help restock the range. Why shouldn't mountain lions be reintroduced also?

We might as well admit that the modern hunter, armed with rifle and scope, is not an efficient substitute for the large predators. He doesn't get far enough back from the roads to properly cover the country. Nor is he a persistent hunter, willing and able to spend long days in the pursuit of his quarry. Hunting to him is only a sport — not a deadly serious game of survival.

The mountain lion, on the other hand, makes hunting its vocation. It is a tireless wanderer, ever in search of game. It can bring a deer to the ground with one great forward leap to the victim's back. And the mountain lion, like the American Indian, makes no distinction between male and female when seeking its prey.

In the Southwest, where the mule deer are large animals, a mountain lion usually kills a deer a week. It might take two of our much smaller white-tailed deer per week to satisfy its appetite here. Fifty mountain lions turned loose on the Allegheny National Forest could have a significant effect in improving the deer herd, and permitting range recovery in areas that are too little hunted today.

If anyone doubts the value of a mountain lion population in helping to improve the quality of a deer herd and the range, he has only to read about the famous Kaibab deer herd and the catastrophic effect that the removal of most of the lion population had on both the deer and the forage.

To restock mountain lions on the Allegheny National Forest would undoubtedly bring howls of protest from many sources. These great cats would be considered fearsome beasts that would terrorize the countryside making it unsafe for campers and other recreationists to use the Forest. Many sportsmen would object to their introduction because they would not want to share the game with them, even though the mountain lions would probably be feeding on deer in the back country where few hunters penetrate.

Mountain lions are very timid animals, and few wild animals are less dangerous. They are mainly nocturnal in their habits, and a man can work in mountain lion country for years and never see a lion.

If this great cat were as inoffensive toward horses and other domestic livestock as it is toward people, it might be practical to try to bring it back on the Allegheny National Forest. But it prefers young horses to deer, and it will not turn up its nose if a fat young heifer should cross its path.

I'm afraid too, that it might find this area too heavily populated with Homo sapiens — a two-legged mammal for which it has no use.

Still, I think that a few mountain lions would be nice to have around if for no other reason than to be able to hear an occasional lion's wild, screaming cry on a dark night.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR
Warren Times-Mirror & Observer
Warren, Pa.

Dear Sir:

The election on Tuesday, November 7, 1967, is extremely important. Every registered voter should examine the records of the candidates and decide which ones will best support the progress of the past and properly evaluate the future.

Blain Mead's record is clear. On EIGHTEEN separate occasions he tried to destroy or cripple the Planning Commission.

If Mr. Mead had been successful—

1. Every township would have been required to develop a water-sewer plan at a cost of THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS. This plan was developed by the County at NO LOCAL COST.

2. The proposed Warren by-pass would have cost MILLIONS OF DOLLARS MORE. The Warren County Planning Commission plan was accepted by the State (over recommendations of other engineers) saving the damages to several industries and numerous residences.

If Mr. Mead had been successful—

3. Public access to the Allegheny Reservoir would NOT have been protected by public ownership. A FEW could have owned the hillside on the western bank and could have destroyed the forested beauty. The re-election of Mr. Mead will mean continued efforts to destroy the Planning Commission. He must be defeated on November 7.

Yours for continued progress.

Says Wedding Ban Averts Ship-Jumps

By HARRY MOSKOS
HONOLULU (AP) — Gov. Owen Aspinall of American Samoa says his ban on a Korean fisherman marrying a Samoan woman "is an effort to keep disgruntled fishermen from jumping ship while in Samoa."

"If we allowed this, overnight the captains might lose half their crews," Aspinall said yesterday as he stopped here en route home from the national governors' conference.

W. Churchill Loses at Polls

LONDON (AP) — Winston Spencer Churchill, grandson of Britain's wartime leader, was defeated last night by 577 votes in a special parliamentary election.

Kenneth Marks, local favorite son, held the Gorton district in the Manchester suburbs for the Labor party despite a massive swing to votes away from the Labor government.

In another special contest at Leicester, in the industrial Midlands, the Conservatives wrested the seat from the Laborites.

The vote in Gorton was: Marks, 19,259; Churchill 18,682; Terry Lacey of the Liberal party, 2,471; author John Creasey, campaigning for an all-party government to meet Britain's economic crisis, 1,123; and Vic Eddisford, Communist, 437.

Tuesday. The police said Green had been drugged, sexually abused, and strangled. Two boys, who said that they had been paid by Weinstein to get rid of the body, have been charged as accessories after the fact of murder.

Agreement Reached on Foreign Aid

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Senate and House conferees reached formal agreement yesterday on a foreign aid authorization of $2.67 billion in the fiscal year that ends June 30. The compromise figure was more than $780 million less than President Johnson proposed.

The conference authorization included $2.164 billion for economic assistance programs and $510 million for military assistance. Behind the agreement lay 13 hard-fought conferences over the last seven weeks in which the most controversial issue was the Senate's insistence that U.S. arms sales on easy credit terms to underdeveloped countries be ended next Dec. 31.

Under the compromise agreement, credit sales involving the Defense Department's guarantee of financing through the Export-Import Bank must end June 30. Meanwhile, the conference put a $190 million ceiling on federally guaranteed credit sales before that date.

FOUND SLAIN IN TRUNK

Police were looking for a Philadelphia tobacconist yesterday in connection with the slaying of University of Pennsylvania freshman John Walker Green III (left), whose body was found stuffed in a trunk (right) in the Delaware River.

Weird Tale Emerges As Police Probe Strangling

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A weird tale of young college men being drugged in a waterfront store, before being dumped elsewhere emerged yesterday in the strangulation of a University of Pennsylvania freshman.

Police charged Stephen Weinstein, 35-year-old tobacco shop owner, with the murder of the student, John Walker Green III, of Des Moines, Iowa. A search for Weinstein, missing since Tuesday, was under-way. Green's body was found stuffed in a trunk floating in the Delaware River Tuesday.

Authorities said he was drugged and sexually abused before he was strangled. An autopsy showed the 18-year-old youth's body bore bites and other marks, and he was given some kind of a knockout drug.

On Thursday police charged two teenaged boys with being accessories after the fact of murder. A third youth was being questioned.

Police quoted two boys as saying each was paid $20 to help get rid of the body.

Investigators said five Penn students have told of being given knockout drops or drugged while at the tobacco shop, later waking up unaware of what had happened.

Charged with being accessories were James Hammell, 14, and Vincent Myers, 16, both Philadelphia schoolboys.

Police quoted Hammell and Myers as saying in a signed statement they were paid $20 each to help get rid of Green's body.

Police also quoted Hammell and Myers as saying they had taken other drugged students from the riverfront tobacco shop back to the Penn campus, some five miles away, and dumping them there.

Detectives said Hammell and Myers also told of helping take Green's body in the trunk for burial in a rural area near Reading, Pa., 35 miles northwest of Philadelphia. Finding the ground too hard, however, they said they returned with the trunk to Philadelphia. After shoveling some dirt and stones into it for weight, the trunk was thrown into the Delaware River, police quoted them. It sank momentarily, they said, but then bobbed to the surface.

Two workers eating their lunch on a pier Tuesday saw the trunk and pulled it out. Inside was Green's body, stuffed into a sleeping bag.

Green, missing since Oct. 22, left his dormitory then, telling fellow students he was going to buy a pipe.

BROWNS' RYAN STILL QUESTION MARK

NFL's Casualty Reports Almost Grid Who's Who

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Ryan, Cleveland quarterback, is listed as a question mark for Sunday's game with Pittsburgh but Dallas is expected to regain the services of Don Meredith for the Cowboys' clash with Atlanta.

Washington lists linebacker Sam Huff as very doubtful for the meeting with St. Louis but expects split end Charley Taylor and running back Ray McDonald to return.

The weekly injury report, as released by the National Football League, included the following information for Sunday's games:

Green Bay (5-1-1) at Baltimore (3-0-2), Bob Brown may start at defensive end for Packers for Lionel Aldridge, questionable after ankle injury against St. Louis, Colts regain flanker Jimmy Orr (shoulder) and receiver Ray Perkins (leg) expected to be ready. Running back Jimmy Welch (back) is out for at least a month. Raymond Berry on injured list.

Los Angeles (4-1-2) at San Francisco (5-2), Rams at full strength except for kick return specialist Wendell Tucker (bruised back). 49ers expect defensive tackle Charlie Krueger (knee) and running back Gary Lewis (back) to return.

New York (4-3) at Minnesota (1-5-1), Giants expect defensive back Scott Eaton (ankle) will be ready, returning Spider Lockhart to free safety. Tackle Francis Peay (back) question mark and reserve defensive end

Injury Halts Bills' Linebacking Streak

NEW YORK (AP) — Marty Schottenheimer, a reserve for Buffalo's trio of linebackers who have started 80 consecutive games, finally gets his chance Sunday because of an injury to middle linebacker Harry Jacobs.

Jacobs suffered a broken collarbone against Houston last Sunday and probably is lost for the season. Schottenheimer will team up with Mike Stratton and John Tracey for the Bills against the Miami Dolphins at Buffalo.

The rundown on injuries as released by the American Football League office:

New York, 5-1-1, at Kansas City, 4-3 Joe Namath, Jet quarterback has missed drills because of twisted right ankle but is expected to play. Mike Smolinski (Shoulder) ready for special teams but Bill Mathis and Billy Joe will split the New York fullback job.

Chiefs may have problem at guard with Ed Budis (strained knee) and Curt Merz (bad back) questionable. Linebacker Willie Lanier has a head injury and E.

Dartmouth-Yale Meeting Labeled as Ivy Title Game

By TOM HARRIGAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Dartmouth, which has dominated Ivy League football since 1965, meets resurgent, hard-running Yale in a match tomorrow which probably will decide the Ivy title.

Both are 3-0 in league play. Yale has been taking giant steps of improvement from a team which dropped its big games in recent years. Dartmouth arrived early in what Coach Bob Blackman had called a "rebuilding year." Dartmouth shared the Ivy crown with Harvard and Princeton in 1966, and won it outright in 1965.

Last Saturday, Dartmouth needed a last minute field goal to slip past Harvard 23-21. Meanwhile Yale went through, around and over stunned Cornell enroute to a 41-7 massacre.

Yale's squad, 4-1 including an opening game loss to Holy Cross, is the toughest it has fielded since an unbeaten title year in 1960. The Yale ground game has churned 255.8 yards per game, third among the nation's major colleges.

Dartmouth, 5-0 overall, depends more on balance with quarterback Gene Ryzewicz chief among the Indians.

"He's a real problem," Yale Coach Carm Cozza said Thursday. "He's got exceptional speed, he throws well, and he maneuvers so well."

Ryzewicz also was among the nation's top punt-return men the past two seasons.

"Dartmouth's apparently been saving him from punt returns this year," Cozza added, "but we might see him doing more chores Saturday."

Delighted alumni of both sides are expected to swell attendance to about 60,000 Saturday. The Bowl holds 70,896. The Dartmouth-Yale series began in 1884 when Yale won a 113-0 massacre.

The Indians have taken six of the last nine contests against Yale to bring the series record to 28-17-5 in the Bulldogs' favor.

Yale's straight-ahead running power was particularly effective against Cornell because of the addition of an outside running and passing threat.

He's quarterback Brian Dowling, injured most of 1966 and out for three games this year with a broken wrist. His right wrist

Kent's Forfeit Offer Refused By N. Illinois

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Northern Illinois University has refused to accept Kent State University's offer to forfeit Kent's Sept. 23 football victory.

Kent President Robert I. White said yesterday he had received a telegram from NIU Athletic Director George Evans saying Northern Illinois "appreciates Kent's sportsmanship but... cannot accept your offer of forfeit the game."

White called it a fine gesture on the part of NIU.

"A ray of sunshine finally broke through," a University spokesman quoted him as saying.

Kent had offered to forfeit both its victories this year because an ineligible player was used. Mid-American Conference Commissioner Bob James ordered forfeiture of Kent's conference victory over Ohio University, but took no action on the NIU game because that was a non-conference contest.

With the 35-0 victory over NIU still on the books, Kent's record is 1-6.

Chiefs Pick Up Buffalo Center

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League claimed center Wayne Frazier on waivers yesterday from Buffalo and Chiefs' Coach Hank Stram indicated Frazier would start Sunday against the New York Jets.

At the same time, Stram placed center Mike Hudock and linebacker E.J. Holub on the injured waiver list, which means they can't play for 16 days. Both have leg injuries.

Frazier was traded to Buffalo before the season. He was the Chiefs' starter most of last year, including the title game with Green Bay.

This brought the Kansas City roster to 39, one under the limit, and Stram indicated another player will be added this week.

still was wrapped when he threw two touchdown passes, ran for another score and amassed 159 yards total offense against Cornell.

Yale's top ground gainer, with 317 yards, is 210-pound halfback Calvin Hill. But Hill has an injured ankle. Coach Cozza expects he will play, but probably not start against Dartmouth.

Waynesburg Offense Faces Tests

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Wayneburg, Pa., unbeaten, top-ranked and the NAIA's total offense leader with 488.1 yards a game, closes its season against the top two NAIA teams in total defense — Westminster, Pa., and Fairmont State, W.Va. It's a statistician's dream.

Westminster has given up only 106.8 yards a game running and passing combined. Fairmont 112.6. Both are unbeaten. Wayneburg meets Fairmont Nov. 4 and Westminster Nov. 11.

Most of the NAIA individual leaders remained unchanged, but Bill Wick of Carroll, Wis., has taken over the top spot in passing receiving with 51 catches and 161.5 yards a game.

Doug Van Boven of unbeaten Central of Iowa is still the rushing and scoring leader. He has rushed for 163.5 yards a game and scored 96 points.

Steve Lucas of William Jewell in Missouri is still on top in yards per carry at 9.5, with 66 for 650. Rich Lichtel of Bloomsburg, Pa., remains the leader in passing at 332.8 per game and in total offense at 304.7, despite his losses attempting to pass.

Gary Loyd of California Lutheran has the best punting average at 47.5 while Vic Nyvall of Northwestern Louisiana leads in punt returns with a 41.8 average, a minimum of six returns required.

Bulldogs Coach Suspends Three

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Coach Vince Dooley announced yesterday that three suspended football players would not accompany the Georgia team to Houston to play the Cougars Saturday night.

The Georgia coach met with the three players—running back Brad Johnson, safety Jack Scott and offensive tackle Wayne Byrd — before announcing that he was not lifting the suspension imposed Monday for a curfew violation.

"We certainly need them in the lineup for Houston," Dooley said in a statement, "and they very much want to play. But I believe it is in the best interests of all concerned that they not be reinstated at this time."

Broncos Claim Ply from Bills

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The Denver Broncos of the American Football League claimed Bobby Ply yesterday on waivers from Buffalo.

Ply reported for a brief workout, shortened because of blizzard conditions on the practice field.

Steele-ing The Sports Scene

Season Too Long?

For our purposes here, the 1967 high school football season is one week too long.

It's not that we're tired of watching the gridders perform (we could take football year-round), but our prediction percentage has finally reached a respectable level (.753) and this last week could send the old average tumbling.

Flushed with momentary success, we'll use this week to expound on two current controversial issues: Warren's Section II schedule and a rematch with Franklin.

The fact that the Dragons are forced to play their five conference opponents one after another has long been a bone of contention here, at least for the fans. The subject came up at Wednesday's Sports Boosters meeting.

Schedules are usually arranged years in advance (Warren's Section II wrestling slate covers the next ten years for example), but a change is not an impossibility.

Unfortunately, most of the other Section II teams like the current arrangement. Corry has suggested moving its contest with the Dragons to the weekend after the present final game, but Dragon coaches prefer to meet the Beavers in the opener. (Warren has won seven of the last ten games).

However, if Franklin could be persuaded to play the Dragons in the sixth week of the season instead of the seventh, Grove City (the Knights' sixth opponent) would have to change its schedule, triggering a change all around the area.

A rotating schedule has been proposed in which, for example, we would meet Meadville, perhaps, in the opener instead of Corry next year and Oil City would be the opponent the following season, etc. Again, this system would require the vote of the majority of the other five conference schools, who—as we said—don't want to change.

The problem leads into the second issue: a "dream" rematch with Franklin. Obviously, the Dragons had not yet jelled when they met the Knights, who had no trouble posting a 46-0 whitewash. The progress made by the Blue and White indicates it would be a different game if played now.

"If only we could play Franklin again," has been an oft-heard phrase during the past few weeks, but sources in Franklin report that the Knights are happy to have that one tucked away.

In our opinion, we had our chance at the Knights this year and "blew" it. We're looking forward to next season's meeting and you can believe that Coach Shea, his staff and the current juniors and sophomores are just as eager.

When the game rolls around again, brother, bar the door!

A 16-4 record last week brought our season totals to 113-37 and over the .750 mark for the first time, and this week we guess:

Warren 21, Bradford 13

The Dragons haven't had a bad game since September 23 and the Owls are still smarting over last year's upset. The rivalry approaches the fierceness of the Jamestown and Corry series and Bradford has the backfield to halt the Dragon's streak.

Bradford CC 19, Sheffield 13

The Wolverines did themselves proud against Ridgway, but the Ramblers ripped Smethport and held St. Marys to a tie and won't be a pushover. Only an effort like last Saturday's could win it for the Orange and Black.

Eisenhower 7, Frewsburg 6

Both teams are 2-4 in the Valley Conference. Frewsburg has scored 53 points and given up 117. The Knights have scored 47 and allowed 104. Sounds even, but Ike has the home-field advantage.

Ridgway 27, Johnsonburg 14

A big rivalry is the ideal way to close an undefeated season and victory will be even sweeter for a great Elker team.

Port Allegany 20, Smethport 19

Both teams are unbeaten in the AML, but the Hubbers have lost two non-conference games and Port is still perfect.

Other Games:

McDowell 26, Jamestown 13
Corry 33, Meadville 6
Franklin 27, Sharpsville 12
Wattsburg 19, Harborcreek 7
Silver Creek 21, Forestville 0
St. Marys 20, Elk CC 6
Salamanca 19, Kane 13

Toronto Snaps Red Wings' Streak, 9-3

DETROIT (AP) — George Armstrong scored twice and assisted on two goals last night to pace the Toronto Maple Leafs to a 9-3 National Hockey League rout over the Detroit Red Wings.

Brian Conacher also scored twice as the Stanley Cup champion Leafs ran up their second lopsided score in as many nights, Toronto whipped Montreal 5-0 Wednesday night.

The Leafs played their best game of the season and they did it without leading scorer Frank Mahovlich, left in a Toronto hospital suffering from "depression and tension."

The Leafs said he will be out of action at least two weeks.

Rookie Wayne Carleton, a 6-foot-3, 223-pounder, took over Mahovlich's left wing spot on Dave Keon's line and scored one goal and assisted on both of Armstrong's.

Conacher, Ron Ellis and Mike Walton gave Toronto a 3-0 lead before Gordie Howe scored the first of his two goals for the Wings — Howe has eight goals in 10 games — but Toronto added another for a 4-1 lead before the first period ended.

Pete Stenkowski, Armstrong and Carleton scored in the second period as Toronto constantly overpowered Detroit and Armstrong made it 8-1 in the third period before Howe got his second goal.

Toronto's fourth victory in five games snapped Detroit's four-game winning streak, but the Wings remained in second place in the NHL's Eastern Division.

Toronto advanced to a third place tie with Montreal.

Toronto Winger Being Treated

TORONTO (AP) — Frank Mahovlich, left wing for Toronto of the National Hockey League, has been admitted to a hospital suffering from depression and tension, a team doctor said yesterday.

Dr. Hugh Smythe said Mahovlich, 29, would not be allowed visitors. He would not elaborate.

Mahovlich played Wednesday night and picked up a goal and two assists as the Leafs beat Montreal, 5-0.

There was no indication as to how long Mahovlich would be out of the Toronto lineup.

Ring Picks Saldivar For Honors

NEW YORK (AP) — Vicente Saldivar, retiring featherweight boxing champion, has been named Fighter of the Month by Ring Magazine, it was announced yesterday.

In his farewell fight, Saldivar stopped Howard Winstone of England in the 12th round in Mexico City on Oct. 14. At 24, he is believed to have been the youngest world champion to retire.

Ring, edited by Nat Fleischer, now rates Mitsunori Saki of Japan as the top-ranked featherweight.

In the heavyweight rankings, Jerry Quarry moved up from eighth to fifth because of his decision over Floyd Patterson and Sugar Ramos jumped from sixth to fourth because of his triumph over Ernie Terrell.

CAGERS TAKING OVER

Wednesday signaled the start of scholastic basketball practice for all Pennsylvania teams, including Warren County's five schools. At Warren Area High School, Coach Joe Shantz adds a note of levity to his drills with Randy

Jones, Dave Cobb, Rick Nasman, Danny Krumm and Rob Loranger. The opener for the Dragons is at Youngsville on Tuesday, November 28. (Photo by Mansfield)

Hawaii Golf Lead Taken By Weiskopf

HONOLULU (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, a flop in this tournament as a bridegroom last year, shot a solid 68 as a married man of one year and took the first round lead of the $100,000 Hawaiian Open yesterday.

Weiskopf's lead held up when pre-tournament favorite Arnold Palmer tried what he called a pair of "fancy pants" trap shots that failed and wound up with an even par 72 over the Wai'alae course on the slopes of Diamond Head.

Two little known pros shared second spot behind Weiskopf: Jim Grant of Weathersfield, Conn., playing only his second tour tournament, and John Fels of Portage, Pa., smallest man in the field, at 5-foot-4. They had 69s.

Slender George Archer, always a contender here, managed a 70 as did the New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles.

Brisk trade winds sent many scores soaring. Chi Chi Rodriguez shot 79, Ken Shill of Tacoma soared to 78. So did defending champion Ted Makalena, who had an eight on the first hole where he chopped the ball from bunker to bunker.

Bill Casper, ranked with Palmer on the favorite list, was three strokes back with 71, along with Bert Yancey, Bruce Cudd, Kermit Zarley, Larry Ziegler and Jack McGowan.

Deane Beman, Tommy Bolt, and Ray Floyd were among those tied with Palmer at 72.

Weiskopf finished out of the money in the Hawaiian Open last year when he was on his honeymoon. But now he posted what he called a "good, steady round—nothing spectacular."

He made four birdies, including two on tap-in putts.

Palmer, trailing his enormous army, birdied the 14th hole from eight feet to go three under par and it looked as if he was set to charge for the lead.

Instead, he put his second shot into the trap at No. 16 and tried a fancy shot that failed to clear the lip.

NEW YORK — A week ago the Jackson State College Tigers defeated the Braves from Alcorn A. and M. in a key Southwestern Athletic Conference game at Jackson, Miss. On hand was a capacity crowd of 14,000, half of the people standing because the twin wooden grandstands of Alumni Field were full.

Jackson State is a favorite to win the Southern Conference title this fall and there are three, possibly five, professional candidates on the squad led by Tommy Funches, a 6-foot-5-inch 251-pound tackle.

The players on the starting offensive and defensive lines average 243 pounds and stand 6 feet 3 inches in height. In winning, 7-6, over Alcorn from Lorman, Miss., which was no slouch of a team either, the Tigers displayed size, speed, quickness and depth, if not a sophisticated passing attack.

What a team like Jackson would do to any Ivy League outfit is frightening to imagine.

The Southwestern Athletic Conference, founded in 1921, and made up of eight Negro colleges in Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas, is not to be confused with the Southwest Conference of Texas, Southern Methodist, Arkansas, Baylor and four well known others. In terms of the size of the stadiums the crowds, the gate receipts and the budgets the all but all-white Southwest is the "have" conference, the Southwestern the "have not."

However, the Negro college conferences do have more prospects every year and the scouts from the National and American leagues are enraptured by the kind of boys who play for Jackson, Grambling, Alcorn, Southern, Texas Southern, Wiley, Prairie View and Arkansas A.M. and N.

For the most part these young men are from small Southern towns and display size, quickness and a special dedication. They are given this dedication by their college coaches, who make it clear from the start that football can be a way up from the hopeless poverty of the small town south. Those brought down from Northern cities usually fail. "They can't stand the hot sun and the punishment we dish out," says Rod Paige, the young coach at Jackson State.

"We run our football program like a business," said Paige. "There is no fooling around. Pro football is there for the very best and they know that such an opportunity may never exist for them again. For the others, football is a means to get an education."

Another coach put it more bluntly. "Except for pro ball," he asked, "how else can these big old country boys earn so much money so fast? We tell them the last game they played for fun was the last game they played in high school."

The Southwestern Conference this season has 36 of its alumni in the NFL and AFL. That is remarkable when one realizes that the first one, Tank Younger from Grambling, went to the big time only 18 years ago.

Grambling is the college one hears the most about these days. Situated in Northern Louisiana, this coeducational state college has sent almost 50 of its products into pro football. There are 14 active this season including such notable names as Willie Davis, Green Bay; Ernie Ladd, Houston; Buck Buchanan, Kansas City; Frank Cornish, Chicago and Willie Young, New York Giants.

Texas Southern at Houston has eight, Homer Jones of the Giants included. Jackson State has six, of whom Willie Richardson of Baltimore and Verlon Biggs of the New York Jets are the most famous.

One of the several big conference games this fall will be Jackson State-Grambling at Jackson, Miss., on Oct. 21. That one is so big they will play it in 46,000-seat Memorial Stadium, a site usually reserved for the all-white teams like Mississippi and Mississippi State. The pro scouts will be there in droves.

SAYS GOT 'LOUSY DEAL'

Maglie Blasts Dick Williams, May Quit

BOSTON (AP) — Sal Maglie, indicating he may be through with baseball after almost 30 years in the game, has sharply criticized Boston Red Sox Manager Dick Williams.

"I got a lousy deal from Dick Williams," the one-time ace hurler, who was fired as Boston pitching coach last month, said in an interview published in the Boston Herald-Traveler yesterday.

He said Williams "never lis-

Mick Plans Two More With Yanks

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Yankee baseball slugger Mickey Mantle said Wednesday he will play two more years. He hinted that he will retire after that.

Mantle, here for a banquet, told a sports writer he would play "at least two more years."

Mantle was asked if he would ever catch Babe Ruth in home runs.

"Ruth hit 712 during his career and I'm 200 behind with only two seasons to go, so I don't think there is much chance," Mantle replied.

The slugger also said he had no ambitions to be a manager or coach.

Mantle said he believes the Yankees have little chance to regain the American League pennant next year.

"We really weren't as bad as we looked in the standings," he said. "We finished in ninth place but 34 of our losses were by one run."

Mantle said he doesn't know what plans the Yankee officials had for strengthening the team for 1968.

tened to me" during the season and "never had the courage or decency to tell me I was fired" afterwards.

Maglie also charged that Williams used poor judgment in the seventh World Series game when ace right-hander Jim Lonborg was pounded by the victorious St. Louis Cardinals before being relieved.

"It was obvious Lonborg didn't have it, Williams should have gotten him out sooner, and I told him so," Maglie said by telephone from a Niagara Falls, N.Y., hospital where he is under treatment for a neck injury suffered in an automobile accident shortly after the end of the season.

"It was a crime that he let a man who'd done such a great job for him all season take a pounding like that," Maglie added.

Williams was en route to Florida by automobile yesterday and not available for comment.

A Red Sox spokesman said the club had no comment on Maglie's remarks.

As for his future plans, Maglie said he "may be all through with baseball and go into something else." He said he had not sought another baseball job and may not when he is released from the hospital.

The famed "barber," who helped pitch the old New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers to National League pennants in the 1950s, has been in baseball in one capacity or another most of the time since starting his playing career with Buffalo in the International League in 1936.

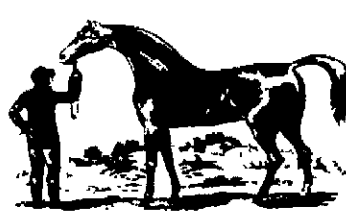

He pitched for five major league teams, the Giants, Dodgers, New York Yankees, Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Cardinals, finishing his career in 1958. After that he spent two separate periods as Boston's pitching coach, from 1960-62 and again in 1966-67.

Novel Writing a Death Trap

NEW YORK (AP) — So maybe you'd like to write novels and become rich and famous? Well, listen to this warning from Leon Uris, whose most recent best-seller is "Topaz," and who turned himself from a high school dropout into one of the world's most successful novelists:

"I don't know of any other profession that has the casualty rate that novel writing has. That life in the lonely room gets them.

"Novel writing is a real death trap. It kills off major writers. It burns them out.

"The novelist, in a way, is like a garbage can. He has to expose himself to the filthy, the leprosy, the ugly, as part of life. He can't take his eyes away from truth.

"He has to feel these things. And in time they break him down."

Among major novelists Uris feels were burned out by the inexorable requirements of their craft he listed Jack London, Sinclair Lewis, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Ernest Hemingway and William Faulkner. The key to a novelist's personal survival is balance, he said, adding with a smile: "I never let work interfere with my pleasure."

In actuality, however, the athletically built writer — he's 43, blue-eyed, has iron-gray hair, a sensitive face that breaks into a ready grin when he thinks he has said something too serious — is a man of intense self-discipline.

Beginning at the age of six, when he composed an operetta about the death of his dog, a work that never managed to reach Broadway, the Baltimore-born writer turned out hundreds of thousands of unpublished words.

He quit school at 17 to join the U. S. Marines and serve in the Pacific combat theater. After the war he spent eight frustrating years before his first novel, "Battleground," based on his Marine experiences, found its way into print.

Turned down previously by seven publishers, it has since sold seven million copies and been made into a film. Altogether the six novels by Uris include "Exodus" and "Armageddon" — have sold between 17 and 20 million copies.

"It took me all my life to become an overnight success," Uris said wryly. "I had a lot of trouble breaking the doors down."

A fluent writer who can zip 100 words a minute out of his typewriter, Lee rewrites each page several times. He likes to ski most of the day in the mountains surrounding his hillside home at Aspen, Colo., then concentrate on his writing between 4 and 7 p.m. in a workshop over his garage.

"Most writers are morning writers," he said. Being a twilight writer has its advantages: I don't have to play parlor games with the kids or help them with their homework."

Uris likes to spend two full years in researching the background of his novels, then writes them in from seven months to a year.

Critics, admitting the raw power of his narrative skill, have sometimes complained his novels lack literary grace. To which Uris, who has a low opinion of most critics, has replied:

"Fortunately, English and writing have little to do with each other."

He believes that American literature in this century has been "the most virtile of any in the world, and will probably continue to be."

"The biggest problems of our time are the survival of the human race, hunger and tyranny. These are great themes."

He isn't afraid his own inspirational fount will soon run dry. "I'm Jewish — I've got a lot to say."

WHO IS THIS MAN . . .

AND WHY IS HIS PICTURE IN THE PAPER?

Answer: His name is William F. Clinger, Jr., and he is a Republican Candidate for Delegate to the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention, along with Victor Westerberg of McKean County.

Question: What is his background and what qualifications does he have for the job?

Answer: A lifelong resident of Northwestern Pennsylvania, William F. Clinger, Jr., is a graduate of the Johns Hopkins University and the Law School of the University of Virginia where he graduated in the top 15% of his class. A practicing attorney in Warren, Pennsylvania, he was a member of the Pennsylvania Bar Association's Project Constitution Committee. He was selected as the outstanding local Jaycee President in Pennsylvania of 1960. He presently serves as President of the Warren Library Association. He is married and has four children.

Question: Where does he stand on the issues to come before the Convention?

- Answer: William F. Clinger, Jr., believes:
1. That Pennsylvania needs a modern Constitution if it is to keep pace with other states.
 2. That antiquated limitations on debt should be eliminated to enable Pennsylvania to finance needed capital improvements more economically.
 3. That Pennsylvania needs to strengthen existing units of local government by extending home rule to these units, enabling them to fashion local solutions to local problems.
 4. That the Pennsylvania Supreme Court should have administrative control over all of the courts of the Commonwealth.
 5. That judges for the Supreme and Superior Courts and the lower courts of Philadelphia and Allegheny County should be selected on the basis of merit rather than elected.
 6. That abuses in Pennsylvania's minor judiciary system require correction and reform.
 7. That rural Pennsylvanians must be assured of an effective voice in state government.

Malay-Viet Aid Hike Considered

(c) N. Y. Times News Service KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — The leaders of this small but rapidly developing nation told U.S. Vice President Humphrey yesterday that they were considering increasing their non-military aid to South Vietnam.

Humphrey told the Malaysians that the U.S. probably would step up its technical assistance to Malaysia to help solve the country's housing problem and establish building co-operatives, credit unions and savings and loans associations.

Humphrey, who flew here from South Vietnam Wednesday, met two hours yesterday with Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman and his cabinet. The Malaysian foreign ministry issued a statement afterward saying they had had "very frank and friendly discussions" of several subjects, particularly Vietnam.

"The prime minister reiterated," the statement said, "that while Malaysia is not involved militarily, she is prepared to go all out to offer any help that might be required of her in the peaceful, constructive program of development in that country."

It was learned that the Malaysian leaders told Humphrey that they intended to reinstitute a program of aid in rural development, an area in which the Malaysians have shown considerable skill in their own country.

Malaysia had such aid program during the regime of president Ngo Dinh Diem, who was overthrown and assassinated in 1963. But the program was dropped afterward because of the difficulties of dealing with a succession of unstable Vietnamese governments.

Humphrey gave the Malaysians an optimistic assessment of the new Saigon government. But he warned that the next six months would be critical in gaining popular support.

It is understood that the Malaysian leaders volunteered the information that they were thinking of more aid to South Vietnam and that the Vice President did not ask for it. The Malaysians did ask for an increase in technical assistance, and Humphrey promised to try to get it for them.

Malaysia supports South Vietnam in its war against the Communists but has sent no troops. It has trained about 4,000 South Vietnamese in counter-insurgency methods, based on its own success in suppressing Communist guerrilla warfare, at a special center in this country.

Humphrey Chastises The Doves

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey chastised critics of the Vietnamese war yesterday and strongly supported the newly installed government in South Vietnam.

"No nation has done so much to help so many others as our nation and I have little or no time for those that downgrade us," Humphrey said in a 35-minute speech to members of the U.S. Community here.

"I don't think you prove yourself to be an intellectual by pointing out all our mistakes. You just prove that you just don't feel right, like in the beginning stages of an ulcer," Humphrey told the 300 guests assembled in the residence of U.S. Ambassador James Bell.

"You do not prove that you are a great patriot by constantly pointing out our shortcomings. You prove only that you are a pessimist."

"The United States is not what it is today because it was managed by fools and because everybody made mistakes. If it is what it is today because we did what we thought was best. If we failed, we tried again."

Humphrey said U.S. military personnel continually asked him during his visit to Vietnam:

"What's wrong with those folks back home?"

"I told him, be careful, there are people with honest differences of opinion. One of the reasons we're in Vietnam is to fight for freedom of opinion."

Humphrey said he felt criticism of the recent Vietnamese presidential and legislative elections were unfair.

SAC Bomber Crashes Near Rome, N. Y.

(c) N. Y. Times News Service ROME, N. Y. — Six airmen were killed and two others hurt yesterday morning when a Strategic Air Command bomber crashed and exploded four miles northeast of Griffiss Air Force Base here.

The plane, a B-52H eight-engine jet, was on a routine training flight from Grand Forks Air Force Base in North Dakota and was passing over this area, headed northeast, when it developed engine trouble, an Air Force spokesman said.

No weapons, nuclear or conventional were aboard, except for a tail gun, the spokesman said.

The two survivors left the plane by ejection seats, parachuting from a low level.

One suffered chest injuries and a broken leg and was said to be in fair condition. The other airmen suffered shock. No names were released by the air force pending notification of next of kin.

The plane had a crew of five officers and one enlisted man and carried two others who were described as crew chiefs.

Chrysler Strike Seen as Possible

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers Union said yesterday it will strike Chrysler Corp. next Wednesday if no contract is reached by then with the nation's third-biggest automaker.

The UAW, in its 57th day of a strike against Ford Motor Co., said the union president, Walter P. Reuther, will join Chrysler negotiations Saturday afternoon in the drive to reach a settlement.

Ford, second-biggest U.S. auto builder, remained out of production because local-level contract disputes remain unsettled at about a dozen Ford plants.

The company, which estimated it lost $74 million in the third quarter due to the strike by 160,000 workers in the UAW, said yesterday it could resume production if local agreements could be reached at three union bargaining units in Ohio.

A Ford spokesman said the units included two engine plants and foundry operations in Cleveland, a stamping plant in Cleveland and two automatic transmission plants in the Cincinnati area.

Local agreements have been reached at enough assembly plants to allow processing of newly manufactured parts, the spokesman said.

Ford was struck at midnight Sept. 8 when the old three-year contract expired there, and at Chrysler and General Motors.

The national contract settlement was reached at Ford last week and signed by company and union officials last Monday. The strike, however, remains technically in effect until local agreements are reached at all Ford plants.

The UAW announced the strike deadline at Chrysler following a series of bargaining sessions between subcommittees yesterday.

The union is striving to win from Chrysler a contract like the one it obtained at Ford. The Ford pact, which included gains equal to $1 an hour in wages and fringe benefits at the end of the third year, is the biggest contract gain in auto industry history, Reuther said.

POLICEMAN TESTIFIES

Antipoverty, Riots Linked

BY WALTER R. MEARS WASHINGTON (AP) — A Houston police lieutenant asserted yesterday that people on the payroll of the antipoverty program took to the streets attempting to incite riots during a year of racial tension.

"At present, our situation is calm—but still some tension," Lt. M.L. Singleton told the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee.

Thus for a second day that panel's investigation of big-city riots focussed on the role of Negroes linked with the federally financed program to combat poverty.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said he does not think Singleton proved his charge of agitation by antipoverty employees. "We don't have the evidence," Muskie said. "We'll know more later."

And Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., noted that when Negro violence threatened on Aug. 16, Francis Williams, executive director of the local poverty-fighting program, was credited by city officials with helping to avoid trouble.

But Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., underscored the Singleton accusation in this exchange: "You mean some of these people that are actually trying to incite riots were actually on the payroll of this local organization with this $600,000 financed out of the federal treasury?"

"Yes, sir," Singleton replied. The program at issue was called Project Go. Samuel L. Price, a deputy director of the Harris County Community Action Association, testified Wednesday it was an effort to hire for civic projects the most militant of Houston's Negroes.

Johnson Threatens to Veto Import-Quota Bill

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — President Johnson threatened yesterday to veto any import-quota bill passed by Congress.
In a clear effort to counter a sudden surge of protectionist sentiment, the President told 1,000 delegates to the Consumer Assembly an association of consumer groups, that import quotas would invite "massive retaliation from our trading partners abroad." They would raise prices, diminish overseas markets, and narrow the range of goods available to the American consumer, he said.
Using his strongest language to date on the quota issue, and pounding the rostrum as he spoke, Johnson declared:
"I think those protectionist bills just must not become law. And they're not going to become law as long as I am president."
Asserting that even the "little publicity that has been spread around the globe" had already caused the nation's trading partners grave concern. They are "up in arms," he said. Johnson asked the assembled consumer groups to help dissuade their congressmen from any protectionist course.
"I plead with you, I plead with all Americans, to make yourselves heard, to exercise your rights and to fulfill your duties both as citizens and more important as consumers."
A large number of major industries and their congressional sponsors have introduced bills to restrict imports on steel, some forms of textiles, petroleum, beef, dairy products, shoes, lead, zinc and other items.
Technically, the bills would effect $6.4 billion of imports, and expose U.S. exports to retaliation in the same amount. Most of the bills would do little to reduce current imports. Instead, they would control future import growth in the affected products.
Taken together, however, the very existence of the bills, in the opinion of officials, represents at least a psychological and, depending on the number that succeed, a practical threat to the trend towards freer trade that has distinguished American trade policy for three decades.
said he would also boycott ceremonies today, Cuba also slighted the anniversary.
Brezhnev will deliver the main speech today of the six-day celebration, which ends with the traditional Red Square parade Tuesday.
Four new types of military rockets are expected to be shown in the parade—following horse cavalry that recall the old Red army which consolidated Lenin's revolution.
Premier Alexei N. Kosygin might speak Sunday when attention shifts briefly to Leningrad, the city where the revolution occurred in 1917.
Communist sources said some of the visiting delegations held talks on China's challenge to what Moscow considers to be orthodox communism, on Vietnam, the Middle East and other subjects.
The main discussions are expected to begin Nov. 8, while ordinary Russians are recovering from the traditional Nov. 7 afternoon-to-evening feasts of vodka and mountains of food.
One controversy that has long been fermenting between Moscow and Havana on Latin-American policy, appeared to non-Communist observers to have caused a Cuban slight to the anniversary celebrations.
Prime Minister Fidel Castro sent a low-ranking official. This followed recent publication by the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda of anniversary articles by Argentine and Chilean Communist leaders criticizing Cuban policies as too revolutionary.

Russia Celebrates 50th Anniversary

MOSCOW (AP) — Six days of celebrations began in red-festooned Moscow yesterday with top Communists from around the world gathered to honor the Bolshevik Revolution and discuss current problems, including Red China. China boycotted the festivities.
The key man in the celebrations, Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev, opened the program by unveiling a 12-foot Kremlin statue of the key man in the revolution 50 years ago, Lenin.
Brezhnev called Lenin the man "who inspired us and will inspire our descendants."
Chinese Charge d'Affaires An Ch'i-yuan boycotted the ceremony and an embassy spokesman

$8.5 Million Silos Bring $667 Apiece

By JOHN BARBOUR
NEW YORK (AP) — The State University of New York brought two surplus underground Atlas missile silos from the federal government yesterday for $667 each. They cost $8.5 million each when they were built to house nuclear warhead missiles in 1962.
The silos—174 feet deep and 52 feet across—were declared surplus in 1965. Now they will be used to study the effects of cosmic rays on the aging of white rats and fruit flies.
The U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare has turned over 10 other Atlas missile silos to educational institutions in the West and Midwest.
They are going to be used for a variety of scientific experiments from rocketry to acoustics. Kansas State University which took three sites is going to fill one with water to study underwater living.
The State University took title to the silos, adjacent land and buildings, everything but the missiles, a spokesman said.
The air-conditioned silos—with concrete walls ranging from nine feet thick at the top to 2.5 feet at the bottom—will house experiments on the effects of cosmic rays on aging in living creatures.

Attacks Shafer On Taxes

HARRISBURG (AP) — House Minority Leader Herbert Fineman, noting that the administration had underestimated revenue yields for October, urged Gov. Shafer yesterday to halt the drive for what he called "unnecessary taxes."
"Figures from his own office show that more than $102 million was collected in taxes during the month of October," the Philadelphia Democratic lawmaker said. "His figures further show that this is $8 million more than he had estimated for that month."
Fineman also accused the governor of misleading the public by releasing figures showing that revenue yields for the first four months of the fiscal year exceeded estimates by only 1.6 per cent.
"The governor has sought to mislead the public about the actual magnitude of his mistake by comparing actual revenue yields to estimates made on Sept. 25," Fineman said.
"Naturally, these so-called 'estimates' used actual figures for the first 2½ months of this fiscal year and therefore were not subject to a great deal of error until the receipts were made known for October."
Fineman said tax yields are up 5 per cent over last years, compared with an increase of 2.75 per cent projected in the governor's $1.8 billion budget. The Democrats, in opposing the administration's tax program forecast an increase of 6.4 per cent.
"The governor has repeatedly said that he will drop his tax everything program if he is shown where it's wrong," Fineman said. "Now that his own figures show that he is, indeed, wrong, it is time for him to drop the demand for his inflated tax program."
"The plain fact is that we do not need much of the $300 million that the governor has demanded in new taxes."

State Police Report 105 Complaints

State police Sgt. John Krupcey has released activities of the Warren substation last month. There were 105 complaints received, 48 criminal and 57 traffic. Under criminal complaints, 31 were actual offenses and two unfounded. Ten offenses were cleared by arrests; one vehicle, valued at $200 recovered and $313.62 in other property. State police responded to 15 requests for assistance such as delivering death messages or word of illness in the family and helping other police departments. Forty-one accidents were investigated; one traffic violation, one assistance in Public Utility Commission road check; three escorts, four OR investigations dealing with lifting of suspended operators' licenses and/or registrations. Officers presented four safety programs in October. Accidents claimed one life and injured 20 persons with $33,480 in damages. There were 132 traffic arrests, 22,620 miles patrolled and seven school buses inspected.

State Group Recommends Vietnam Bonus

HARRISBURG (AP) — A special legislative task force recommended yesterday that a special state fund be established to compensate relatives of servicemen who lost their lives in Vietnam. The report of the Joint State Government Commission task force also supported the establishment of a Vietnam bonus after approval in a statewide referendum. The report proposed immediate legislative action to pay death benefits of $1,000 to the next of kin of any Pennsylvania serviceman killed in Vietnam. It also endorsed submission to the voters of a bond issue sufficient to pay $25 a month bonus for Vietnam service. World War II and Korean War death benefits paid by the state amounted to $500 while a bonus of $10 per month for domestic service and $15 a month for foreign service was allotted for both conflicts. The proposed Vietnam bonus would apply only for service in that Southeast Asian theatre of operations.

Youngsville Kiwanis Club Meets

Youngsville Kiwanis Club members at their regular dinner meeting Tuesday, were advised the total for the United Fund Drive in the Youngsville area was $1,330.75. James Pearson, United Fund chairman, thanked members on behalf of Kiwanis Club for their efforts in conducting the fund campaign and also commended workers who assisted Kiwanians in making the drive a real success. James Dorow reported on a trip to Port Colbourne, Ontario last week for an interclub visit with the Kiwanis Club there. Gilbert Anderson, chairman of fruit cake sales announced fruit cakes have arrived and have been distributed to all members. Two sizes are being sold; 3 lb. cakes at $3.50 and 1 1/2 lb. cakes, $2. Profits from the annual fruit cake sale are used to support Kiwanis charities. Ernest Oviatt, Charter Night program chairman, said plans are complete for the annual observance to be held at First Methodist Church on Nov. 14. Program for the evening was presented by program chairman, Ralph Raylor.

Wounds Wife, Kills Companion

CLARION, Pa. (AP) — Police said a man wounded his wife and killed her companion with a rapid burst of shots yesterday when he found the two in a club. Harold Eugene Hackett, 43, of Sligo was charged with murder. His wife, Donna Lou, 38, was in guarded condition in Pittsburgh's West Penn Hospital. She was shot four times. Five bullets hit the dead man, Ronald E. Magness, 30, of Rt. 2, Clarion. Police said Hackett walked into the Clarion Veterans of Foreign Wars Club with a .22 pistol in his pocket, went through the bar and into the lounge where the couple was sitting.

'Lights On' Campaign Is Planned

Veterans and citizens are urged to show support for all American servicemen by driving with automobile headlights turned on over Veterans Day weekend Nov. 11 and 12. Major General Thomas R. White Jr., Adjutant General of Pennsylvania, who is spurring the headlight campaign, stated the vast majority of Americans are behind our servicemen. "We feel a dignified demonstration of this type will show the overwhelming support we have for our men all over the world," White said. The "headlight demonstration" was used recently in New York to counter a variety of peace demonstrations staged around the country, the largest being held in Washington, D.C. Veterans officials said that, after news broadcasts, headlights were turned on all over the nation. It was, they said, "a mass citizens rebuke to those who suffer from 'give-up-itis'."

Students Vow to Boycott High School After Melees

BY BEN DEFOREST Associated Press Writer PITTSBURGH (AP) — Negro pupils vowed yesterday to boycott classes at Oliver High School after authorities said they would keep the school open and under police guard following two straight days of fist-swinging melees. The Negro youngsters, following yesterday's violence at the racially-mixed school, said they would stay away from classes until the board of education meets with them to talk over their grievances. They demanded removal of uniformed police officers stationed in the school and said better communication is needed between the student body and faculty. They also said they want to meet with the white pupils to talk over their problems. Among their grievances, the Negroes charged that history books make no mention of Negro history and want them replaced. The flurry of fights among pupils yesterday broke out during the noon recess. Seven were treated at a hospital for cuts and bruises, but there were no serious injuries. Police Supt. James W. Slusser said two or three persons were taken into custody. About 80 policemen rushed to the school on the city's North Side when trouble broke out. After the fighting was quelled, officers were stationed in the corridors and also outside the building. The normal attendance of 1,040 had dropped to only 475 for morning classes, and only about 300 pupils were in their rooms in the afternoon. Dr. Sidney P. Marland Jr., Pittsburgh superintendent of schools, told a news conference on the school steps that he and police officials had agreed to keep the school open and bring in police protection of pupils. Mrs. Alice Wieszorlek of the Oliver High School Parents Committee said her organization had asked for police protection for pupils before, during and after school. "We are going to sustain Oliver High School as a good, high school," said Marland. "We are reasonably certain forces from outside the school have been causing all the problems this morning. I met with about 100 concerned parents. We all agreed that we would all work to make this school safe." Officials said a Halloween night incident triggered the trouble at the school Wednesday. A gang of white boys, they said, shoved and struck some Negro girls. As the word got around, tension at the school rose. School officials tried to calm the situation Wednesday morning but they say a group of Negro boys gathered in a corridor and refused to go to their classes. When police arrived to restore order, the group of boys rushed down the hall. During the brief flurry, a number of pupils were injured or sickened by the effects of a chemical Mace, a new police device similar to tear gas that has no lasting effect. Tension rode high in the neighborhood after the ruckus. At a meeting in a church hall, Negro adults and school children complained about use of the chemical Mace by police. It is said the average American woman is on the telephone one year in her lifetime, and speaks 4,800 words a day.

Pennsy Cars Derail on Famed Curve

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP) — Ten cars of a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train derailed yesterday on the famed Horseshoe Curve, spilling across three of the line's four main east-west tracks. A trackman working by himself saw the wreck and was injured running toward it, "either from something flying at him or as he jumped over some wreckage," said a railroad spokesman. John George, 63, of Cresson was admitted to Altoona Hospital in fair condition. Eastbound trains were sent through on the one open track through the scenic Allegheny Mountain area. Westbound trains were detoured and there were no delays, the railroad said. The 149-car train was headed for the Conway Yards in Beaver County from Enola, near Harrisburg. Cause of the wreckage wasn't known. AEF Monthly Meet The Society of the 28th Div. A.E.F. will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in the VFW rooms. All members are urged to be present. Lunch will be served following the business session.

STUNNED BY 'MACE' SPRAY

Students at Pittsburgh's Oliver High School seek relief from a riot control chemical mace spray by standing near windows and rubbing their eyes. Police put down a disturbance at the school Wednesday by using the spray, part of a "riot plan" which ended scuffles between students.

*Philomel Club Gives Program
As Guests Of Jamestown Club*

Twenty members of the Philomel Club of Warren were guests of the Jamestown Mozart Club on Wednesday afternoon in the Marvin House. They were welcomed by Mrs. Willard Perlee, president of the host club, Mrs. Charles Eaton, president of Philomel, responded, and spoke briefly concerning the exchange programs which originated as far back as 1923. Mrs. Frederick Olson, chairman of the exchange recital entitled "Strings in Depth," reviewed the history of the violin. She stated in part that the Moors in 711 A.D. brought with them to Spain a small stringed instrument which became the favorite of Spanish and Italian troubadours and the ancestor of the violin. About 1550 a group of Cremona artists produced some of the most famous violins ever made. In those days Norway spruce formed the top of the violin and produced an amazing sound velocity. The wood in the bow came from tropical lands and accompanied the soprano voice only.

Mrs. Olson went on to note that the sonata, more rigid in composition than lyric music, often has considerable melodic quality and that Torelli, an Italian violinist, applied the sonata principle to concerted music: Mrs. John Benze, accompanied by Mrs. Joseph deFrees played "Sonatina" by Clementi.

Mendelssohn, followed Beethoven's example in the use of symphonic style, joined classical severity with romantic expression; illustrating this Mrs. Olson, accompanied by Mrs. Peter Horning, offered Mendelssohn's "Concerto in E Minor". Following a natural progression in the program theme for the afternoon "Strings in Depth," Mrs. Ronald Simonsen and Mrs. Olson played "Concerto For Two Violins" by De Bériot.

Illustrating the theme further, Mrs. Benze, Mrs. Olson, Mrs. Simonsen, Mrs. deFrees, Mrs. William Yeager Jr., and Mrs. Samuel Bonavita presented Elchberg's "Andante" with Mrs. Horning the piano accompanist.

The program closed with the rendition of "Adagio Cantabile Septet, Opus 20" by Beethoven, played by the above six violinists and Mrs. James Potter, violinist, Mrs. Robert Conn, cellist. A social hour followed.

MR. AND MRS. CLARK WILTZIE
*Fentonville Couple Notes
Ruby Wedding Anniversary*

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Wiltzie of Fentonville were greeted by one hundred and twenty-five friends and relatives at an open house held Sunday, October 29, at the Frewsburg Methodist Church. The event was in observance of their 40th wedding anniversary and was given by their children, Arlene Schott of Bad Axe, Michigan; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wiltzie, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wiltzie, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Long, Mr. and Mrs. William Waite, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wiltzie and Miss Margaret Wiltzie, all of Frewsburg.

For the occasion, the former Annie Lowery chose a blue knit dress to which was pinned a corsage of red roses. Mr. Wiltzie was favored with a boutonniere.

The flowers were gifts from the couple's twenty grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiltzie were married on October 29, 1927, in the parsonage of the First Methodist Church, Jamestown, N.Y.

The table was centered with a five tier anniversary cake which was served by Mrs. David E. Wiltzie; punch was served by Mrs. Pauline Morrison; other aides were Mrs. Helen Parks, Mrs. Phyllis Schultz, Mrs. Rubie Bennet, Mrs. Grayce Tornstrom, and Mrs. Mary Ann Swasnick. Ann Waite and DeLores Long had charge of the guest book.

Guests were present from Jamestown, Clymer, Ellington, Randolph, Frewsburg, N.Y.; Akeley and Clarendon.

*Dr. David Rice Addresses
Woman's Club Department*

Dr. David Rice, Veterinarian was presented as the speaker for the afternoon meeting of the Community Service Department of the Woman's Club on Monday following a luncheon for Woman's Club members. Introducing the speaker was Mrs. John Shaffer, chairman of the Community Service Department.

In her introduction, Mrs. Shaffer noted that the guest speaker's educational background included three years of pre-veterinary studies at The Pennsylvania State University, and four years of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania. He has practiced veterinary medicine locally since 1946.

Along with Dr. Rice's comments on his local general practice, a sound filmstrip, produced by the American Veterinary Medical Association, was employed to take the viewer-listener all the way from the topic of a dog having heart surgery, to that of the use of animals in space flights.

He pointed out that the Veterinarian is constantly engaged in projects to advance both animal and human health. The safety and effectiveness of drugs for humans are first tested on animals. In fifty years, Dr. Rice noted, all major farm animal diseases in this country have been either eradicated or brought under control.

Animals are silent and price-less partners in man's struggle for a better and healthier life: As a source of food, as a beast of burden, or, as a loyal companion. More than half of all American families have pets for their joy and protection. Their health and the health of their owners is directly dependent upon the Veterinarian, was his conclusion.

Mysterious music floating over Yellowstone Lake has been heard most distinctly in the early mornings of cloudless, breezeless days.

More marriages are proposed in the United States in automobiles than any where else, according to a survey.

*Hagerman-Morris Wedding
Solemnized At Holy Redeemer*

Mary Ann Hagerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hagerman, of 9 Bradley street, became the bride of Kirk R. Morris, son of Mrs. Vance Chappel of RD 2, Tidoute, and Mr. Fred Morris of RD 1, Centerville, recently at Holy Redeemer Church. The pastor of the church, the Rev. Father Joseph Seyboldt, read the double ring wedding rites in the presence of one hundred and fifty guests.

Altar decorations included white carnations with lighted tapers, and the bride placed a bouquet of red roses at the foot of the Blessed Virgin's altar.

Escorted on the arm of her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of white silk organza over bridal taffeta in an albine silhouette with peau d'angelace etched with seed pearls and crystal beads forming the empire line of the bodice. The molded bodice had a bateau neckline, and the three quarter sleeves were finished with scalloped ruffles of the lace. The chapel length train, attached at the shoulders with a pert bow was richly bordered with a wide scalloped band of the lace. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was caught to a cluster of peau d'ange lace and organza florettes sprinkled with seed pearls and centered with a crystal teardrop. She carried white carnations and blue sweetheart roses encircling a corsage of white roses.

The maid of honor was Miss Janet Muczynski of Youngsville; the bridesmaids were Miss Linda Hagerman, Mrs. Gary Phillips, both sisters of the bride, and Miss Alice Samuelson of New Jersey. All were gowned in light blue crepe floor length gowns with royal blue velvet contrasts and matching royal velvet petal cluster headresses with butterfly veils. They carried cascades of white carnations and pink sweetheart roses.

Best man was Paul Downey of Tidoute; ushers were Randy Morris brother of the groom and Jim Sharp of Endeavor, Doug Sharp of Pleasantville, cousins of the groom.

The mother of the bride chose a metallic two-piece suit in light blue and the mother of the groom was in a dress of blue wool. Both had corsages of red roses.

A reception was held in the Glade Township Fire Hall with one hundred and fifty guests attending. The table decorations included a centerpiece of white and gold mums, and, other decorations were carried out in white and blue, and wedding bells.

Aides were Ruth Ann Woodburn, Mrs. Boyd Smith, Mrs. David Lopez and her daughter, Becky Lopez.

For traveling to the New England States, the new Mrs. Morris wore a brown and white wool dress with black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Morris are now at home at 214 N. Carver street.

The bride is a graduate of Warren Area High School, 1960, and is employed at Sylvania. The groom is a 1961 graduate of Tidoute High School, and has served three years in the Army. He is now an employe at Sylvania.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given by Mrs. Anga Juczynski and Jana; and, Mrs. Gary Phillips. The rehearsal dinner was given by the mother of the groom, Mrs. Vance Chappel.

Guests attended from Warren, Youngsville, Titusville, Tidoute, Pleasantville, Grand Valley, Clarendon, Corry, Endeavor; and, Jamestown, N.Y.; Matawan, N.J.

Answers Your Problems

47 Legion Auxiliaries Delegates At Council Meeting In Endeavor

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My mother used to say, "Always wear nice underwear. You never can tell when you'll get into an accident." I thought that was pretty funny. Yesterday I stopped laughing.

A college friend and I went bike riding. We are experienced cyclists and neither of us had ever had an accident. Della's bike suddenly hit a hole in the cement. She went sailing head first and landed in a clump of bushes. Fortunately, a squad car was within 100 feet of us and the police officers rushed her to the hospital. Of course I went along.

The first thing the doctor did was cut off Della's blouse and slacks. Soon she regained consciousness and called me by name. Although she was in pain she seemed much more concerned about her underwear than her injuries. And well she might have been. I never saw such a filthy brassiere — torn and faded — and her pantie girdle was in even worse condition.

Luckily she suffered only a broken shoulder and a dislocated hip, but she told me later that her embarrassment over her underwear was more painful than her injuries.

I learned a lesson at Della's expense, Ann. Maybe others can profit by it as I have. — NEAT ALL THE WAY THROUGH

DEAR NEAT: Thank you for sharing. O.K., girls, take a fast reading. Are you wearing undies you wouldn't mind modeling in an emergency room? How's the lace on your slip? Is your girdle a wee mite shredded? Did you hurriedly pin that busted bra strap this morning instead of sew it on? Upgrade your underwear, Sisters. You never know.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My next door neighbor has read every word you have ever written. Before you get to feeling flattered let me tell you that the idea behind this is to catch you in a mistake. She checks out every fact, gets on the phone and calls the newspaper, the public library, legal aid, welfare agencies, clinics, veterinarians, doctors, clergymen, police, firemen, the post office — anybody she can pump for information.

I would judge that this nut spends anywhere from two to three hours a day trying to trip you up. She thought she had you the day you said a pregnant WAC isn't kicked out of the service and dishonorably discharged. Her face fell a foot when she was told by the recruiting office here, "Ann is right. Pregnant Wacs are simply separated from the service."

This woman used to be the town's worst meddler and most vicious troublemaker. Since she has made you her hobby she hasn't had time for troublemaking and gossip. So thank you. — RCO

DEAR RCO: I am delighted that I am providing a harmless outlet for the woman's energies. If she catches a mistake, I'd be delighted to hear from her.

Confidential to Plenty Suspicious: Just because a man wants to smell good doesn't mean he has another dame some place. Good grief, Woman, get off his back or he might make good your goofy accusations.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with — but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE VOTERS OF WARREN COUNTY:

From: Blain M. Mead

The Republicans of Warren County nominated me for County Commissioner in the Primary Election last May.

Under the American political tradition of fair play and good sportsmanship losing candidates congratulate the winners of a primary and then close ranks and concentrate on defeating the opposition party in the November election.

Because any other course splits a party, it is regrettable that a handful of backers of losing candidates formed a committee, not to pursue the American way, but to raise $12,400 to finance an advertising campaign to defeat me in November.

This is the largest campaign fund ever raised in Warren County for the election of a single candidate running in a local, state or national election. The bulk of the fund was contributed by a very few men.

Why should so few give so much to elect one of three commissioners?

The same committee has continued to show its lack of fair play and good sportsmanship by recently suggesting that I debate the issues — not against one, but against two adversaries under a moderator of their choice.

I do not hesitate to discuss the issues at any time, but I will refuse to play against a stacked deck of cards. I shall continue to carry on a dignified campaign. I can not be bought, and I would not accept an excessive campaign fund if it were made available to me. If elected, I do not need to show favoritism to any man.

I told the voters before the May election that I would consider it an honor and a privilege to work with Dave Rice. My opinion in this matter has not changed.

Respectfully yours,
BLAIN M. MEAD

False carding on defense is not usually recommended inasmuch as it is apt to fool one's partner as well as the opposition. It is sometimes essential to mislead the declarer, however, particularly where the other defender does not have an important role to play. A case in point is South's six spade contract.

West opened the four of clubs and the king was played from dummy. The ace was cashed next and West followed suit with the three. A spade was led to declarer's ace and then came the ten of clubs which West covered with the jack.

South paused to consider his course. If he could safely ruff a club in dummy, he would then need only a three-two division in spades to score 12 tricks - five spades, two hearts, one diamond, three clubs, and the club ruff.

The normal procedure would be to trump the third club with the six of spades, however, West's play in the suit had given declarer something else to think about. The opening lead was the four of clubs and then on the second round West had played the three. This tended to indicate that he had a five card suit, inasmuch as he had presumably led his fourth best originally.

It appeared to declarer that East had a doubleton club and was in position to over-ruff the dummy. South, therefore, trumped the third club with the king of clubs, and his foresight was rewarded when East discarded a diamond. The six of spades was returned from dummy and when East played the nine, South successfully finessed the ten in his hand.

The queen of spades picked up East's jack and after declarer cashed out his tricks, he conceded one diamond at the end.

If West had not given away his hiding in clubs, the result might have been different. If for example, he follows up the line with the eight of clubs on the second lead of that suit instead of the three, declarer might have been induced to play for a four-three division and tried to ruff the third club with a small spade.

Friday's TV Highlights

TARZAN at 7:30 p. m. on Chs. 2, 6, and 12 presents "Last of the Supermen," with guest stars Antoinette Bower and Al McKellan. Tarzan is forced to accompany a group of former Nazis as they search the jungle for a fortune in negotiable securities hidden by an escaped war criminal.

OFF TO SEE THE WIZARD at 7:30 p. m. on Ch. 7 offers "Untamed World," a documentary examining how children in the primitive cultures, still existing in the 20th century, are schooled to adapt to their environment.

STAR TREK at 8:30 p. m. on Chs. 2, 6, and 12 has an episode titled "I, Mudd," in which the Enterprise crew finds itself at the mercy of an earthling who rules a colony of female androids.

HONDO at 8:30 p. m. on Ch. 7 guest stars Forrest Tucker, John Carradine, Rick Nelson, John Agar and Roger Perry in "Hondo and the Judas." A former Confederate Army colonel summons Hondo and others to a meeting to learn who shot the colonel in the back.

CBS FRIDAY NIGHT MOVIE at 9 p. m. on Chs. 4, 35, and 10 screens "McClintock," starring John Wayne and Maureen O'Hara, with Yvonne DeCarla, Patrick Wayne, Stefanie Powers, Jack Kruschen and Chill Willis. A rip-snorting cattle baron has everything he wants except his wife from whom he is estranged and his 17-year-old daughter at college. When his wife demands a divorce and custody of their daughter, McClintock uses old-fashioned technique to bring her to her senses.

GUNS OF WILL SONNETT at 9:30 p. m. on Ch. 7 features Cherie Latimer in "First Love." Will Sonnett suspects a young lady's motives when she tries to persuade Jeff to give up his search for his father and settle down.

BELL TELEPHONE HOUR at 10 p. m. on Chs. 2, 6, and 12 presents "Benjamin Britten and His Aldeburgh Festival." The program, dealing with one of the world's foremost composers and his contributions to the celebrated British festival, includes such performers as Russian pianist Sviatoslav Richter, the Vienna Boys Choir, classical guitarist Julian Bream, tenor Peter Pears and the King's College Chapel Choir.

School Observes Amer. Ed. Week

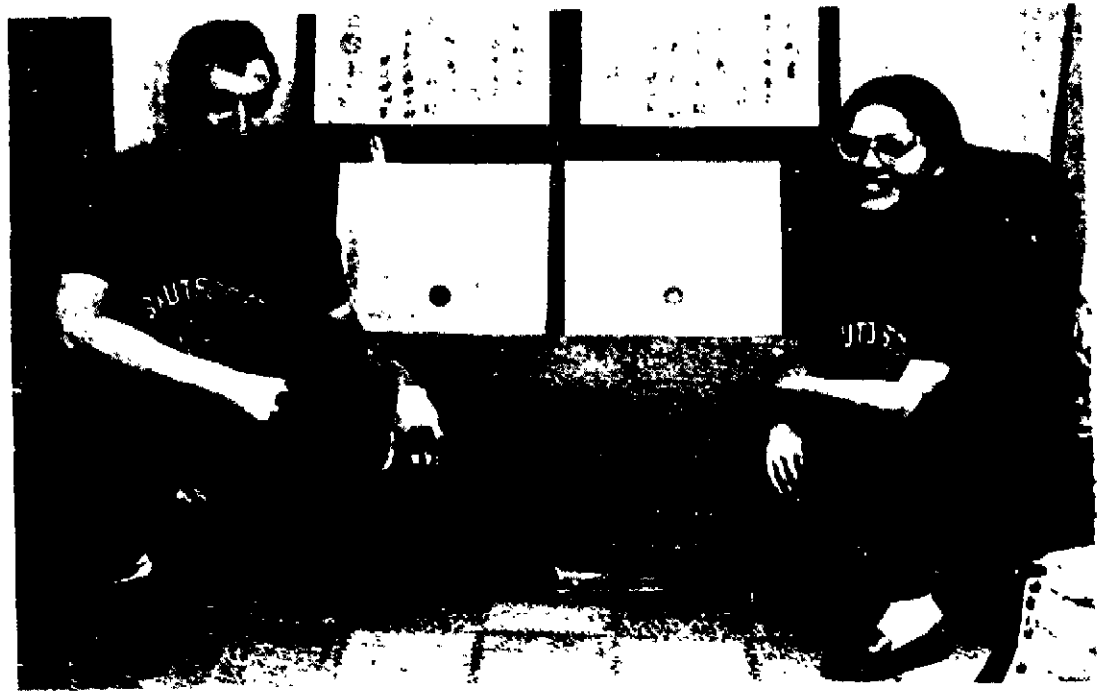

Tuesday, Nov. 7 has been designated the day in which American Education Week will be observed in the Tidioute schools.

"How Good Are Your Schools?" is the theme of this year's American Education Week observance. To enable parents and other interested persons to draw their own conclusions, they are invited to visit the Tidioute schools during the day and observe classes in action.

This open house visitation will be held in both elementary and secondary grades. Student ushers will be on hand to conduct visitors to the classrooms of their choice.

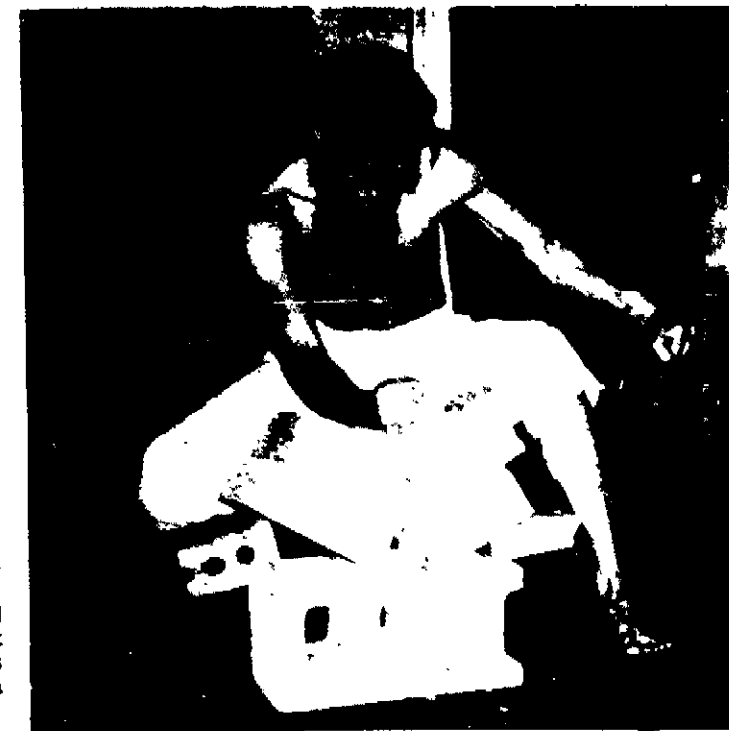

Two recent changes in the Tidioute school program will be noted by visitors. Mrs. Evangeline Daelhousen, kindergarten teacher for several years, was assigned to succeed Mrs. Ellen Lynch as first grade teacher upon the latter's retirement. A large first grade class, 38 pupils, has resulted in the hiring of another teacher, Mrs. Mary Kelly, to work with Mrs. Daelhousen.

Changes also are noted in the elementary special education program. Here, Mrs. Anna-Belle Schall is assuming a regular third grade teaching assignment in place of her former duties in special education. The elementary grade special education pupils are now assigned to their respective classrooms where they are incorporated into the regular ungraded system.

Karate Show Next Tues. P.M.

Tom Handest of Warren, karate instructor who holds a second degree black belt, will give a karate demonstration in the Tidioute school gym at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday, Nov. 7. He will be assisted by several of his students. Tom and his wife Lucille of 113 Conewango, have received advanced degrees in the sport of karate last November. Above the Handests display the certificates they received at that time. Tom received a certificate for second degree black belt while Mrs. Handest won her first degree award. She is one of the few women to be so honored. At the right Tom displays the form which helped him win his second degree black belt, as he successfully breaks four thick blocks of wood with a bare fist.

Garden Club Makes Flower Show Plans

The Tidioute Garden Club will present a Holiday Flower Show in the Presbyterian church parlors on Tuesday, Nov. 28, from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. Theme of this year's show is "Home for the Holidays."

William Allen is general chairman of the flower show committee and sub-committee chairmen are: Mrs. Elizabeth Roza, registration and reservations; Lisle Peters, entries and classifications; Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Bush, staging and properties; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weir, hospitality; Mrs. Elizabeth Roza, publicity; Mrs. Guy Courson, judges, awards and ribbons; Mrs. Russell Johnson, junior exhibits; Floyd Swanson, cleanup; Mrs. Jessie Thomas, arts and crafts; Mrs. Kenneth Teeple, door prize.

Any interested person may exhibit, with a limit of one entry in each class. Reservations must be made with Mrs. Roza no later than one day prior to the show and the exhibits must be placed at 10 a.m. on the day of the show.

Garden Club members held their monthly dinner meeting Tuesday night in the Presbyterian church parlors. A remembrance committee was named to remember all shut-ins of the area at Christmas time. To aid the treasury, Christmas wrappings and ribbons are being sold by Mrs. Kenneth Teeple.

Tidioute School Honor Roll

Students in Tidioute's junior and senior high school who attained superior grades in the first six-weeks grading period are listed on the honor roll as follows:

Grade 12 — High honor, Rosemary Kowalski; honor, Andrea Ballor, Roseanna Bartoo, Susan Barton, Barbara Cook, Janice McGraw, Edward Ziegler.
Grade 11 — Honor, Larry Anderson, Betty Ann Benner, Christine Nuttall.
Grade 10 — High honor, Debra King; honor, Darla Wilson.
Grade 9 — High honor, Kathleen King; honor, James Campbell, Cynthia Carr, William Daelhousen, Linda Edmiston, Susan McGraw, Carol Nuttall, John Ziegler.

Grade 8 — Honor, Rosalee Battko, Nancy Johnson, Sharon Snavley.

Grade 7 — High honor, Susan King; honor, Susan Johnson, Denise Kitelinger, John McGraw, Thomas Pillar, Patricia Shanley.

The evening's program was presented by Mrs. Jean Wrote of the Bell Telephone Company. "To see a world in a grain of sand and a heaven in a wildflower," a quotation from the English poet, William Blake, set the theme for her talk, "Flowers and Seasons."

Using color slides, Mrs. Wrote showed the progress of the seasons in the woods and in the garden, relating some of the little known facts and ancient uses of the flowers pictured.

RURAL CARRIER Hugh "Bud" McGraw begins his day by sorting mail for his rural route delivery. Except for holidays and vacations, Bud has been doing this everyday for nearly 30 years and recently was named 1967 Outstanding Carrier of Pennsylvania.

Mail Carrier Receives Award

Bud McGraw's rural delivery patrons always have known that he is an outstanding carrier but the title was made official recently when the Outstanding Carrier Award was bestowed upon him at the Pennsylvania Rural Carriers Convention held in Harrisburg, followed by presentation of a plaque during the Erie County Rural Carriers Grape Festival in Erie.

Hugh "Bud" McGraw started delivering mail to RD No. 1 patrons of the Tidioute post office on April 18, 1938. For nearly 30 years he has been a National Rural Letter Carrier Association member and has served as both secretary and president of the Warren-Forest District R.L.C.A.

It must be a rewarding job in more ways than one because Bud's only son, Tom, recently became the Tidioute RD No. 2 carrier.

Personal

Mrs. Julia Staub of Julia's Beauty Shop, attended a Beautician's Show recently in Buffalo at the Statler Hilton Hotel sponsored by G. A. Kayser and sons.

No one can determine for sure the age of a hard shell turtle.

Tidioute Calendar

MUSIC BOOSTERS meeting will be held Monday evening, Nov. 6, at 7:30 in the high school.

TIDIOUTE FORTNIGHTLY CLUB will meet at the home of Mrs. Walter McKown on Monday evening, Nov. 6. Hostesses will be Mrs. McKown, Mrs. Henry Fuellhart and Mrs. Gordon Downey and the program will be about Sweden.

WELL BABY CLINIC will be held at the school health suite on Tuesday morning, Nov. 7, starting at 9:30. All area infants and pre-school children are eligible to attend.

A KARATE DEMONSTRATION will be held in the school gymnasium on Tuesday evening, Nov. 7, at 7:30. The Tidioute Lions Club invites the public to attend with no admission charge.

MOUNTAIN GRANGE meets in the grange hall on Friday evening, Nov. 10.

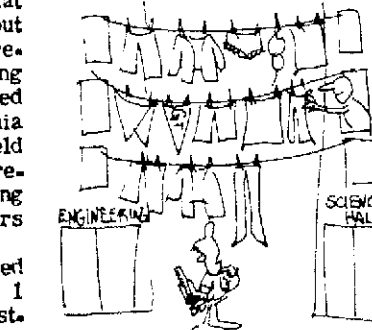

Firemen to Hang Holiday Lights

The work of the Holiday Lighting Committee was a major topic of discussion at Tuesday night's monthly meeting of the Tidioute Volunteer Fire Dept. As a result, Tidioute firemen set November 19 as the date for the annual trimming of the town with Christmas decorations and all firemen are requested to be on hand at 8 a.m. to aid with hanging of the greens and lights.

Firemen were informed that the Warren County Firemen's Association meeting will be held in Youngsville on Thursday evening, Nov. 9.

The radio check team schedule for this month will be: Nov. 7, Elliott Lanning; Nov. 14, Donald Dashner; Nov. 21, Gordon Downey; Nov. 28, Paul Thomas.

SCIENCE SKETCHES

WHITENESS, brightness and cleanliness have put Georgia Tech researchers in suds up to their slide rules. The schools textile engineers are studying washday problems for the Institute of Industrial Laundries and the Linen Supply Association of America.

FILLING MACHINES are becoming more flexible units able to fill a greater number of products and container sizes, says Votator, Louisville. Future fillers will be faster, more accurate and simpler and will require less maintenance.

Church Meetings

BAPTIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY will meet Monday, Nov. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. George Nelson.

CIRCLE TWO of the Methodist WSCS will meet Tuesday night, Nov. 7, at the home of Mrs. Bernard King.

CIRCLE THREE will meet at the home of Mrs. Ray McManigle on Wednesday, Nov. 8, at 1:30 p.m.

METHODIST WSCS meeting date has been changed to November 14 at which time the ladies will entertain the Presbyterian Women. A program and refreshments will be served by the Methodist women.

TIDIOUTE WCTU will be held at the home of Mrs. Ernest Moore on Tuesday, Nov. 14, at 1:30 p.m.

THE TINY ISLAND republic of Anguilla, which can't get either the U. S. or Britain to annex it, reports firing on three "invaders" spotted on the isle. Now, what should we call THAT — a "mini-war"?

Fifty Lawrence University students will attend summer classes in Schloss Boenningheim, an ancient castle in West Germany. The subject, no doubt, should be history.

The U. S. Department of Commerce reports there are now 1,631,000 full time employees on municipal payrolls. No wonder we can't beat City Hall!

Comes now a medical columnist who suggests that it might be more beneficial if at meal times we ate the dessert first. This strikes us as a sound idea — especially during the watermelon and strawberry shortcake days.

The toughest job in sports, says Jockey Johns, is that of a baseball manager sitting on the bench trying to look like a genius as his team trails 10 to 0.

The most popular fellow in our office this year is the fellow who came back from his vacation and didn't have a single snapshot to show to his fellow workers.

Paper money, we've always been told, is covered with germs. Which causes us to wonder if that is why, when a fellow kisses his bankroll goodbye, he usually looks pretty sick!

JOSEPH ALSOP

The New World Lake

WASHINGTON — In Western history there have been two world lakes. First, over a period of nearly three millennia, there was the Mediterranean. And then, beginning in a small way with Christopher Columbus, there was the Atlantic.

But before this century ends in 1980, it is hardly more than 30 years — it is quite certain that there will be still another world lake, the Pacific. And it is not at all sure that the two chief world lakes of the future, the Pacific will not be more important than the Atlantic before very long.

What is going on, in other words, is a shift in the main focus of the world's wealth and productive power as vast and probably as unsettling as the shift produced by industrialization of Western society. "It depends" is really the wrong word — the very, for this shift of focus is already rather well advanced, though few people seem to have noticed it, outside the financial community.

195 Acres in Warren Co. Under Irrigation in '66

(TMC Harrisburg Bureau) HARRISBURG — For those who assume that irrigation is only for desert areas, it should be known that Pennsylvania enjoys 33,655 such "land" acres — of which number 195 acres are in Warren County.

Actually however these are not "desert" areas, but areas in which irrigation is used to boost crop prospects, supplement inadequate rainfall, etc. A survey completed by the State Department of Agriculture shows that of the 195 acres in Warren County coming under irrigation last year, 168 acres were in potatoes, one acre in vegetables for fresh market, 2.5 acres were in berries, ten acres were in field corn, ten acres were in grass silage. No irrigation was recorded for the county in such fields as vegetables for processing, fruit, pasture, etc.

The average number of inches of water applied during the irrigation process in Warren County last year was 6 inches for potatoes, 4 inches for vegetables for fresh market, four inches for field corn, and 4 inches for grass silage.

How far did Warren Countians have to go to get their water? According to the survey, the nearest field to the source of water averaged 550 feet in the can do with Western industrial techniques, once they have got to work in the problem. Indeed, it is quite certain that there will be still another world lake, the Pacific. And it is not at all sure that the two chief world lakes of the future, the Pacific will not be more important than the Atlantic before very long.

In under a decade, therefore, Japan is due to have nearly the weight in the world of England and France combined, for the Japanese, of course, are nearly twice as numerous as either the British or the French. And with a per capita income at the approximate Western European level, Japan will have anational income close to double that of any of the transatlantic Western powers.

The same process is already well begun in every East Asian country and center, except in those under Communist control and, of course, in South Vietnam. If and when peace comes, South Vietnam should take off like a rocket, for it is a naturally rich country, and despite the suffering it has also been greatly enriched by the war.

In China, finally, a very great change is almost certainly on the way. It may come very soon, or it may be delayed a little, until Mao Tse-tung dies at last. When it comes, it will almost certainly take the form of extreme revision. And a China taking the Japanese road, with China's huge mass and all her resources so superior to Japan's, will be what the late Arthur Vandenberg used to call a "wild contemplation."

To the tiny, eccentric band which has bothered to read East Asian history, none of this will be very surprising. After all, throughout most of recorded history the principal East Asian societies have been the richest and most powerful in earth. There is nothing to stop them moving toward their former position, once again, as soon as they have mastered the techniques of Western industrialism. And this is precisely what the more advanced are already doing.

It is totally irrelevant to this project in that even Japan is still maintaining her postwar "low posture" in defense and foreign affairs. Obviously, the Japanese are going to wait until they reach a somewhat greater weight in the world before they begin to throw their weight about. But use their weight they certainly will, in the end.

This projection of the Asian future is intensively relevant, on the other hand, to the American role in Vietnam. In the rather near future, in fact, the United States is due to occupy a unique position in the world as the land bridge between the two world lakes. Our vital interests will require us to play our allotted part in both the Atlantic and the Pacific.

In a good many respects, moreover, at any rate in the decades just ahead, the emerging Pacific world lake is due to present more serious and more urgent challenges. We can, of course, ignore those challenges. To quote the words of Gen. Maxwell Taylor once again, we can try to "go back to Hawaii," thereby seeking to opt out of history. Opting out of history never works indefinitely. Laos tried it, for instance, yet history has now come among them, treading with an iron foot. Even Iceland, so long immune, is not quite immune to history today, and nothing more dangerous can possibly be imagined than opting out of history by the richest power on earth — so affluent, so soft externally, so tempting to every imaginable competitor. The choice in Vietnam was, and is, whether to opt out of history with respect to the development of the Pacific world lake. Some would have us do this, but these are people who know nothing of Asia and who do not understand that the Pacific is so soon due to become a primary world lake. Meanwhile, our men in Vietnam are fighting with splendid bravery for the Pacific interests of all Americans in the future.
